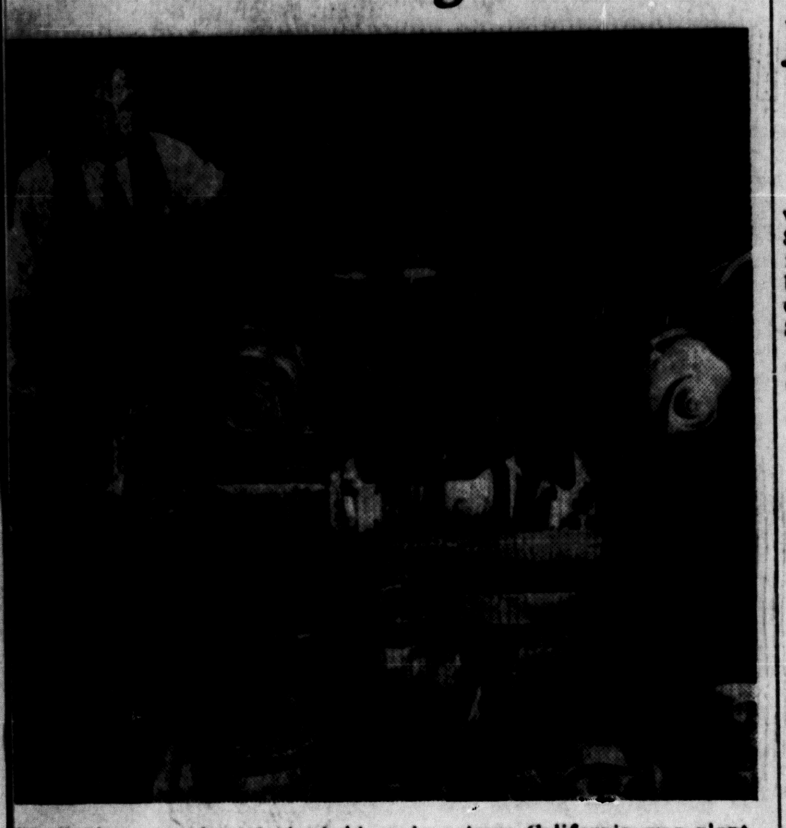
GUADALCANAL FIGHTING OF THE HIT-AND-RUN VARIETY

He Makes It Tough for Axis



Production was about to be held up in a huge California war plant because an intricate machine tool was needed, and then inventive Sam Carter stepped in. A Los Angeles machine shop owner, Sam took an old lathe, two transmissions from junked cars, and the junked frame of a drill press, and constructed the needed machine. He's shown watching it work as it cuts simultaneously the three faces of high-pressure T joints used in ships' fuel and steam lines.

ight Fitness Achieved n Five Months; One Hour raining Daily Is Needed

IN A FEW MONTHS THIS TRAINING WILL CONVERT THE AVERAGE AMERICAN YOUNG MAN INTO A PHYSICAL HUSKY MEETING ARMY STANDARDS GENERALLY.

One hour a day of physical aining, five days a week will in few months convert the average nerican young man into physi- l husky meeting army stand- ds generally.

This is shown in the results of iversal physical training for en at Indiana University, a war easure inaugurated this year at diana and other leading Amer- n universities, writes Howard Blakeslee, noted Wide World ience Editor. The Indiana work veals some special weaknesses the average young man, in oulder and upper arm strength d in endurance.

The first five months' training nearly 3,000 men on the five- y, one-hour plan is analyzed by . Karl W. Bookwalter, assistant ofessor of education. The men orked hard enough in each hour be tired at the end.

They eat more heartily, yet ere was no change in total ight. Fat men lost some flesh and scrawny ones agined. The two balanced each other.

But although unchanged on the scales after five months, the total weight assayed decided gains in quality. The men were harder and stronger.

These men made the best gains in the plays where they were weakest, the upper arms and shoulder area. But after five months their shoulders had not come up to army standards of strength, and the training was altered to do t his by including more work on the parallel bars and the flying rings.

In speed, the Indiana students surpassed the army standards. The speed training was in the sixty-yard dash and in the 440-yard dash.

Superior in Speed.

This superiority in running speed failed to help much for hiking, for the men were below requirements in walking two miles. The reason, Professor Bookwalter said, was largely because they had not been given long walks. The two-mile walk and progressive hiking were added to the training to bring up this deficiency.

On the whole, after five months, the men were up to most of the army standards. Their endurance, as shown in hiking, was one of the deficiencies. To bring up endurance Professor Bookwalter says will take a long time. That sort of training, he says ,ought to start in high schools.

High school boys, as shown by average records, have been receiving only seventeen hours a year of systematic physical training. This can be increased, Professor Bookwalter says, without adding undue strain on the high school age boys.

Miss Reese, daughter of Mrs. Ora Reese, is a Sophomore at the college. Miss Taylor, also a sophomore, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Taylor. She is a member of the Gammadions.

Victory Leaders Of United States Get In The Scrap

Mobilization Of Farm And Ranch Families Contributes To The Success Of The Salvage Campaigns In The Rural Areas Of State.

Mobilization of farm and ranch families throughthe neighborhood leader system has contributed a great deal to the success of the various salvage campaigns in rural areas, according to reports reaching H. H. Williamson, director of the A. and M. College Extension Service, from county workers.

The "human chain" has been used to advise and encourage rural families in the contribution of scrap iron, rubber, and left-over fats. For example, Victory leaders aided in the collection of more than 900 tons of scrap on Wharton County farms during the summer.

Scrap-free farms in Gray County are posting signs which read: "This farm has no scrap. It's gone to slap the dirty Jap." Mrs. Foreman Stubbs, Alanreed community Victory leader, is the author of the sign. Thirty-two Gray County farms qualified to post the marker in September. Farmers in Dallam County have contributed an average of one ton of scrap metal per farm.

Proceeds rom scrap collection in the Judson community of Gregg County were used to finance a community fish fry. The $18 which remained in the fund was donated to the U. S. O. Hewitt H. Wheless, father of Menard County's national hero, was principal speaker at a scrap rally at the Menard football stadium. Members of the audience were sold war savings bonds and stamps as they left the field.

Here are other "salvage" reports. Terry County's per capita collection of rubber averaged 20 pounds. A total of 542 pounds of left-over fats was collected in San Saba County in one week. Victory leaders in Madison, Grimes, and Washington counties are leading drives to collect tin cans. Grimes County met its first month's quota of nine tons in short order.

Verus Williams of Allen had business in McKinney Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Butts and son, Gary, of Clayton, New Mexico, visited Clint Aaron and family on North Church Street.

Mrs. Victoria Stallcup has been removed to her home in Celina from the McKinney City Hospital, where she has been receiving treatment for a fractured limb.

Judge T. O. Murray was in Fort Worth Monday. Judge Murray was meeting with a group of members of the Texas Legislature who were doing preliminary work regarding their opening session in January. Judge Murray is the representative from Collin County. He visited his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, and their daughter, who is a student in T. C. U. in that city.

Red Cross Sewing Room Is In Need Of Buttons

BUTTONS FOR PAJAMAS ARE NOT FURNISHED BY THE RED CROSS; ASK THOSE HAVING UNUSED BUTTONS TO SHARE THEM IN THIS PROJECT.

Material has arrived at the Red Cross Unit for 300 pairs of Men's pajamas. These garments are being cut and finished by Volunteer workers. It is earnestly desired by the supervisors that the ladies of our city and county will readily respond to the urgent need for seamstresses.

The buttons for these garments were not furnished by Red Cross, so we are asking all those who have unused buttons, preferably white, to please share these with the Red Cross. White buttons about the size of a penny are suggested for these garments.

Quite a few faithful workers give their time to the sewing unit. The following is an example of the work being done:

One afternoon recently a group of women supervised by Mrs. Jesse Actkinson and Mrs. Silas Walker began and completed twenty-one garments for refugee children. This shows what can be done and we take this means of thanking all the women who have taken part in this work, and inviting others to join them.

The Surgical Dressing department held at the Boyd High School has had a successful beginning and more classes will be held when the Surgical gauze arrives for tnis work. Watch these papers for further announcements. Red Cross work must go on. More and more is needed and the ones at home are responsible to carry on this work for the ones "Over There." Remember, the Red Cross needs YOU.

PUBLICITY CHAIRMAN.

News From War Front

The axis carried the air war again to Malta and a British town along the Southeastern coast in daylight raids, killing two persons and doing some other damage. British officials warned that RAF and American fliers are planning more extensive daylight raids into Germany.

British submarines have sunk four more axis supply ships. Allied bombers also attacked Tobruk, doing great damage.

Fierce guerilla battles are in progress between German soldiers and Yugo-Slav troops. In unoccupied France, another battle is in progress between De Gaulle, Free French leader in London, and Laval, German puppet leader in France. Indications are that Laval has been given more time to recruit large numbers of French workers for German factories.

Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Commissioner, said that he will submit legislation to mobilize the men and women of the country for war production.

Nine billion dollars in revenue will be netted from the new tax bill, whic hhas passed Congress, and awaits President Roosevelt's signature. Citizens will have evidence of the new tax measure the middle of next March when the first income tax payments are due. The five per cent Victory Tax will go into effect the first of the year.

Wednesday morning an earthquake of a minute's duration shook Los Angeles, California, while an earthquake of three minute's duration was felt at El Centro, California.

AMERICAN BOMBERS DROP TWELVE TONS OF BOMBS ON KISKA IN ALEUTIANS

RUSSIANS ARE ON THE OFFENSIVE. WITH GERMAN FORCES IN STALINGRAD REPORTED HUNGRY; AUSTRALIANS CONTINUE THEIR DRIVE IN NEW GUINEA.

BULLETINS.

The nazis are quoting Japanese sources telling of a fierce battle in progress on Guadalcanal, but the United States officials in the Pacific say the big battle has not started and that the fighting continues of the hit-and-run or skirmish variety. The enemy has made no offensive moves since Sunday, although a Japanese offensive is expected. American planes are busy bombarding Japanese positions.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Australians continue their drive on New Guinea, driving the Japanese toward their base at Kodoka.

◆ ◆ ◆

In the Aleutians, American bombers dropped twelve tons of bombs on the Japanese held island of Kiska, striking a cargo ship.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Russians are on the offensive in several sectors of the battlefront in that country. Reinforced, they are beating back the Germans Northwest of Stalingrad, while in the Caucasus the Soviets have made new gains. They report that the German army, engaged in the fighting at Stalingrad, is suffering from hunger, indicatin that Germany is finding the transportation problem from that country to the front line in Russia dififcult to maintain. Snow, rain and mud makes the German effort more difficult.

American fliers on the the Solomon Islands and Allied bombers of General MacArthur are attacking the Japanese, in an attempt to prevent the offensive against the American-held Guadalcanal. Tney inflicted great damage in another blow at the Japanese base of Buin in the Northern Solomons. The Japanese thrust at Guadalcanal has not started. All planes returned safely from the bombing raids. There have been no further enemy landings on Guadalcanal Island.

A furious attack has been repulsed by the Russians at Stalingrad, and defenders of the city said the German divisions had been cut seventy per cent in their effectiveness. Continuing successful Russian resistance is reported as winter begins in the city. The Russian army nas been strengthened by reinforcements brought in across the Volga River.

The British navy has been restored to full power with the launching of two new battleships of 35,000 tons each. The ships, the Anson and the Howe, already at sea with the British fleet, have built up a friendly rivalry as to which will get the first chance at the German battleship Tirpitz. The Anson has been in action against German aircraft in the Arctic convoy route to Russia.

The RAF attacked three Germand defended areas Tuesday in a daylight raid, using fast Mosquito bombers.

The Australians have gained three miles in their drive against the Japanese in New Guinea. They are within ten miles of Kokoda, Japanese base, it is said.

Merchants Handling Food May Get Information On New Legal Ceiling Prices

BULLETIN IS READY EXPLAINING HOW TO APPLY NEW OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION FORMULA FOR DETERMINING THE NEW LEGAL CEILING PRICES.

Grocers and all merchants handling food at retail may now obtain a printed bulletin explaining how to apply the new Office of Price Administration formula for determining the new legal ceiling prices, Elton Riggs, Chairman of the Collin County War Price and Rationing Board, reported today.

"Beginning October 15," Mr. Riggs explained, "all food retailers were allowed to apply this formula in pricing eleven groups of foods where present mark-ups may be abnormally low."

He added that the period for making adjustments under this new formula expires at midnight, December 31, 1942, so it is important that all food merchants obtain copies of this Food Retailers' Bulletin No. 2 as quickly as possible and familiarize themselves with its provisions.

It is optional to apply the new formula to breakfast cereals, rice, coffee, sugar, canned vegetables, canned fish, cooking and salad oils, hydrogenated shortening and other shortenings. However, it is mandatory to figure the new ceilings on lard and dried fruits.

Mr. Riggs said retail for merchants may obtain copies of this Food Retailers' Bulletin No. 2 by calling at the Collin County War Price and Rationing Board, McKinney, Texas.

Flowers Help To Brighten Up This Office

Mrs. George Wiley Wilson And Mrs. Jim Hollandworth Bring By Lovely Blossoms Tuesday Causing Many Compliments From Visitors To Office.

This office was brightened up Tuesday by the gifts of flowers from friends of this office force Mrs. George Wiley Wilson, who with her husband lives at their pretty home on North Tennessee Street, brought by a beautiful rose which was the occasion of many compliments because of its loveliness. Mrs. Wilson is noted for the beautiful flowers surrounding their home and says that she has forty-eight varieties of roses blooming at her home . in this city.

Mrs. Jim Hollandsworth, who lives with Mr. Hollandworth at 309 East Hunt Street in this city, also brings by a beautiful Coxscomb grown in their yard in this city. In fact the yard of that pretty home is filled with these beautiful flowers, some red, some green, some two tone and some dwarf in size. These flowers likewise were profusely complimented by the many visitors to this office.

These Editors and the entire office force thank these two well-known McKinney ladies for their kindness in thus remembering us with these beautiful flowers that brightened this office during the day.

KNOW YOUR SYRUP

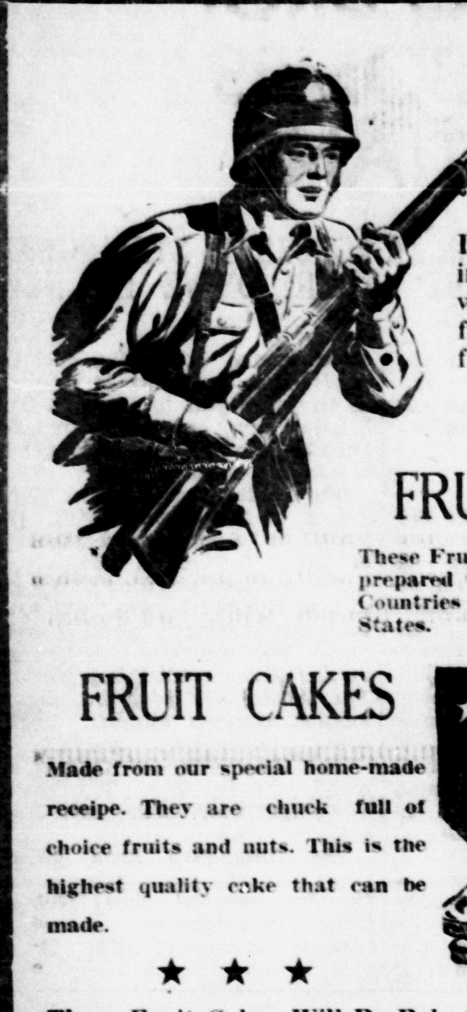
Families not fortunate enough to have their own good home-made syrup can do themselves a good turn by studying and understanding the labels on the sorghum or ribbon cane they buy. These syrups are rich in iron phosphorus ,and other minerals, so it is important to get a high quality product, according to Miss Myrtle Murray, specialist in home industries for the A. and M. College Extension Service.

She adds that studying different brands of syrup on the market in order to distinguish between adultrated and pure products is one of the objectives o fthe 46,000 members of the Texas Home Demonstration Association.

Here are some provisions of the Texas Pure Food and Drug Law which are worth remembering: Syrup packed for sale must bear a label consisting of the name of the product, the net volume of the contents, the name of the maker, and the place of manufacture. When the product is not a pure cane syrup, other ingredients must be listed. If there is any added preservative, flavor, or acid, that must be given on the label, too.

Descriptive phrases in the brand name such as "country," "open kettle," and "home made," can be used only on a pure can syrup, Miss Murray explains. In addition, a product made in imitation."

The Pure Food Law is designed to protect the consumer, Miss Murray says, and homemakers should take advantage of this protection by carefully reading the labels on containers to know what they are buying.



Don't forget our boys in the service. They will appreciate a gift from home or from friends.

Gas Rationing Board Being Set Up In County

Setting up of the gasoline rationing board of nine members in Collin County is in progress, says County Judge H. H. Neilson, of McKinney, who says nine McKinney and Collin County citizens have been recommended by the Collin County Council for Defense to the State O. P. A. office in Fort Worth for confirmation. To be known as the gasoline rationing panel of the War Rationing Board, these men will supervise the registration of motorists November 9 for the rationing that is expected to go into effect November 22. All motorists will recive an "A" book, equivalent to about 4 gallons per week, but with more liberal gasoline allowances to those in essential industries.

First Sergeant Walter M. Thomas To Ft. Sam Houston

The selection of First Sergeant Walter M. Thomas to attend the Infantry Officers Candidate School has been announced at Fort Sam Houston.

Sergeant Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess C. Thomas of Route No. 5, McKinney, Texas.

WILHELM-BEWLEY.

Second Lieutenant Bessie Bewley of the Army Nursing Corps, Fort Bliss, Texas, became the bride of Master Sergeant Carl H. Wilhelm October 7, at the First Methodist parsonage in Los Cruces, New Mexico. The ring ceremony was performed by the Pastor, Rev. Brittle, and attending the bride and bridegroom were First Sergeant and Mrs. Billie Peters of Fort Bliss.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. S. C. Bewley of this city, being a graduate of the Frisco High School and of the McKinney City Hospital School of Nursing. She was a member of the staff of nurses of the McKinney City Hospital here until she entered the Army Nursing Corps, October 1, 1941.

Master Sergeant Wilhelm, a native of Massilon, Ohio, has been in the U. S. Army for the past three years and was stationed at Fort Bliss with the 12th Cavalry, until recently when he was transferred to the 91st infantry, Camp White, Oregon. He will return to Camp White when his furlough has ended while Mrs. Wilhelm will remain at Fort Bliss.

Funeral Is Held At Blue Ridge For L. B. Taylor

Funeral services for Lee Bruce Taylor, 67, were held Monday at the Baptist Church in Blue Ridge, conducted by Rev. Manning, Methodist minister of Nevada and Rev. Bowlin, Baptist minister. Burial was in the Chambersville Cemetery with the R. G. Lamm funeral home directing arrangements.

Mr. Taylor was born in Boone County, Arkansas, the son of Thomas H. and Elizabeth Taylor. He had lived in the Blue Ridge community for fifty-one years. He had been ill about a month and he died Sunday morning at 11:45 o'clock at his home. He was married to Miss Pearl Umphress who with the following children survive: Mrs. F. Legg of Wichita, Kansas; Mrs. G. F. Nayer, Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Billie Taylor of Grand Prairie; a grandchild, Bettie Sue Taylor and two sisters, Mrs. Dewes of Bryan, Arkansas; Mrs. R. A. Maxey of Lavon, also survive, as well as many nephews and nieces.

Leo J. Petway, Fred I. Petway and Gene Biggs, all of Forest Grove, visited in McKinney Saturday.

TWINS BROUGHT TOGETHER AT PERRIN FIELD, IN GRAYSON COUNTY, AFTER SEPARATION

After about two years of separation, Melvin B. and Selvin D. Swanner, 20-year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Swanner of Route 1, Denison, have been brought together again through Perrin Field's current campaign to enlist ground crew technicians.

While home from California on vacation recently, Melvin decided to enter the Army Air Forces as an airplane mechanic. He enlisted September 19. At that time, Selvin, who is married, was not quite ready to enlist, although he definitely wanted to be an airplane mechanic too. So he waited two weeks before entering the service.

Now, Melvin and Selvin, the only twins to enlist thus far during Perrin's ground crew technician campaign, are at Perrin Field and are working together once more with a common objective—to become skilled airplane mechanics.

The twins were separated two years ago when Selvin married. His wife, Mrs. Mildred Caves Swanner, is living at Melissa.

In civilian life, just as in the Army Air Forces, the Swanner twins chose the same kind of work. Selvin worked in the signal department of the Katy Railway company at Denison and Melvin was employed in the signal department of the Southern Pacific Railway company at Los Angeles.

Perrin's campaign to obtain airplane mechanics and radio technicians will close November 1st. Since only three more weeks remain for enlistment under the program, Lieut. T. R. Hubbell, technician procurement officer at Perrin Field, urged interested men to see him at the post headquarters immediately.

ENROLLMENT FIGURES.

Enrollment in Boyd Senior High School at the end of the first month was 411, according to figures released from Principal Earl Slaughter's office this week. Of this number 221 are girls and 190 boys.

Percentage of attendance in Senior High during the first month was 94.3, the report showed.

Junior High figures for the same period showed an enrollment of 394, Principal Stewart Jernigan announced. Girls accounted for 221 and boys 173.

Percentage of attendance in Junior High was 94.16.

AGRICULTURAL CLASSES HAVE NEW SHOP ROOM.

Vocational agriculture classes under J. T. Rollins, head of the department, are occupying a new shop this semester. The shop is located in the room next to their classroom and was assigned them this year.

To initiate the new shop room the boys have been building hog-feeders, a spur on their part to the Food for Victory Program.

The local classes are continuing their drive to sell war stamps. This drive, begun last year, resulted in sale of substantial amounts of war stamps.

Also this fall the efforts of the vocational agriculture department resulted in groups of students going out to pick cotton in spare hours.

◆ ◆ ◆

CLASSES TO ORGANIZE.

Organization of senior high classes is expected to take place next week ,accordingto Principal Slaughter.

Sponsors of the classes have already been appointed and are as follows:

PROBLEM OF 18-YEAR-OLDS.

With the prospect that 18-year-old boys will soon be subject to call for active military service, school officials this week began considering plans to enable boys who have to leave before they have finished work for their diploma to graduate. Every effort will be made, they said to help boys to graduate before they go to the army. Boys in this age group were conferring with the Principal this week.

SPORTS COMMENT.

The McKinney Lions, with only four lettermen from last year's team, have piled up 71 points during the last four games against their opponents' none. They have played one 0-to-0 tie game.

While the McKinney line is slightly heavier than last year's team, it averages only 154 pounds per player. The backfield average is 167 per man, rather a heavy backfield compared with the line. However defensive play by the backfield has been largely responsible for the smothering of opponents' attack the first half of the season.

The 1942 team is the first in several years to get this far without being hindered by an injury to one of the players. (Let us pause to knock on wood, and especially to hope that nothing happens to Wood).

After the game with Denison this week, the Lions rest next week in preparation for the conference opener at Sulphur Springs October 30.

Wayne N. Norman At U. S. Naval Air Station

Wayne W. Norman, 804 North Tennessee Street, McKinney, Texas, recently reported aboard the U. S. Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Texas. After a period of indoctrination he will be assigned to the duties of his rating.

The "University of the Air" is the largest Naval Air Station in the world, and extends to several outlying fields. Here not only the pilots but the flying and ground crews of planes that soon will be carrying the war to the enemy are being trained.

As wel las the various duties attendant in flying, men are trained here in other jobs essential to the functioning of a Navy—from cooking to storekeeping and medicine. The physical scope of the station can be measured by the fact that regular busses run inside the grounds to transport personnel between buildings and hangars.

District Governor Talks To McKinney Rotarians Friday

District Governor J. Bert Graham, 128th District Rotary International of Waxahachie, was speaker at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club here Friday held at the First Christian Church. This was the official visit of the District Governor who is scheduled for a visit once each year to each club in his district. He spoke on "Spirit of Rotary, 1942 model" in which he stressed the idea that this is a time when each man should seek the thing that he can do best, and do it with all his ability.

This is a time when we can not waste man power or labor hours. He also stated that Rotarians should seek ways of helping the government at home, by buying bonds, assisting in collecting scrap materials that are to be converted into materials of war; that they should be concerned about building their own morale and assist in building the morale of the community to the highest patriotic level. Rotarians should also be concerned about plans of operation that might meet the needs of a post-war community, state and nation. Mr. Graham further stressed the importance of having programs for Rotary that are in proportion to the needs of the times and urged every effort of every Rotary club toward close cooperation with the government in all its programs and with lending all its efforts toward winning the war.

President Morris Minton presided over the program and presented the speaker. Prior to the regular meeting Governor Graham met with the Board of Directors at 11 o'clock in the church parlors.

This week's meeting will be held at the First Methodist Church with Rotarians F. D. Perkins and A. M. Scott, Jr., in charge of the program.

Mrs. R. D. Erwin of Sherman, who has been in the McKinney City Hospital for several days following a minor operation, has been removed to her home.

How Red Cross Spends Millions Is Explained

How the Red Cross is spending its $70,500,00 contributed during the organization's recent war fund, on war services is explained by W. S. Smith, chairman of the Collin County Red Cross chapter.

The generosity of the American people, who gave over $20,000,000 more than was originally asked during the organization's first war fund in World War II, made it unnecessary for the Red Cross to appeal for more funds before next March, Mr. Smith said, adding that the Red Cross would not conduct its regular Roll Call this fall.

Basing his statements upon the organization's most recent report, "Since Pearl Harbor," Mr. Smith said that more than half of the money is being used for direct services to the armed forces. The Red Cross, he pointed out, is responsible, under its Congressional Charter, "to act in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their Army and Navy." The Red Cross, he said, is the "official welfare agency for the men in service—the only civilian welfare agency serving the armed forces wherever stationed." Added to that responsibility is an expanding program of recreation for servicemen in the United States and at foreign bases.

"Over the desks of the Red Cross field directors, serving wherever our troops are stationed, are poured the troubled stories of worried men in uniform," he declared. "It is the field director's job to help solve the natural human problems which arise in transition from civilian to military life. This vital service in the preservation of morale is only accomplished with the aid of well-organized Red Cross chapters back home. There are more than 3,700 chapters covering practically every county of America."

More than 440,000 men in the armed forces asked for and received counsel and assistance, through this important home link, in the past year—an increase of 600 per cent over the previous year, Mr. Smith said.

In the large camps of the country, he continued, there are 56 Red Cross Administration Buildings from which this service is rendered but in every camp, every base, every air station, this service is always available to our service men.

In addition, here at home, there are 70 hospital recreation buildings erected in hospital areas by the Army and staffed and operated by the Red Cross. Recreational programs are provided and highly trained medical case workers in hospitals at home and abroad are provided by the Red Cross to aid he patients.

Mr. Smith emphasized the importance of Red Cross services to men abroad.

"As American troops arrived on foreign soil early in the year," he said, "to become quickly evident that not only must the Red Cross play its customary role of recreation host to hospitalized men but must serve the social needs of able-bodied men as well. In a dozen locations where troops are based abroad the Red Cross has established extremely popular recreational centers. Overseas Servicemen's Clubs now are established in Iceland, England, Scotland, Northern Ireland, Australia and New Caledonia."

Chapter activity of the Red Cross in the interest of the serviceman is manifest in many other ways.

To coordinate the efforts of groups in communities near military or naval stations in utilizing resources for the comfort and recreation of servicemen, the Red Cross has inaugurated a new service, the Camp and Hospital Service Council, he said. Working through the field directors at the camps and in cooperation with fraternal service and church organizations in the communities, the Councils carry out such projects as furnishing dayrooms for able-bodied men, providing comfort articles for convalescents and a number of other services. The Councils had increased from 10 on December 7 to 80 in July, with 804 chapters participating in pooling their resources in behalf of adjacent posts and naval bases.

Mr. Smith described, as "a vivid picture of readiness for the event," the surgical dressings program of the chapters as viewed before and after.

"The Army and Navy," he said, "had requisitioned supplies based on anticipated needs, 'should war come'; 75 per cent of the allotment was ready on December 7, and the rest delivered shortly thereafter, a grand total of 45,648,300 dressings. A new program of even greater production now is in full sking. Since Pearl Harbor, Chapter production corps workers have made 1,184,445 knitted articles for the armed forces as well as hundreds of thousands of personal kits."

One of the most colorful services of the Red Cross—and one which has proved among the most valuable to servicemen—is the servicemen—is the Blood Donor Service, Mr. Smith said. Recently, this Red Cross service was awarded the Army-Navy "E" for excellence. Through its 18 centers, the Red Cross delivered 81,493 more units of processed blood plasma that was requested by the Army and Navy by June 30. The armed forces have requested an additional 2,500,000 pints of blood before July 1, 1943, and the 18 original centers have increased be located near processing laboratories, many persons in communities not having centers are unable "to give a pint," Mr. Smith pointed out. However, contributions made by the millions of Americans during the last war fund are paying for the processing, which costs approximately $3 per unit, he added.

Further breakdown of the Red Cross dollar shows that 10 per cent is being used for civilian emergencies, 25 per cent for preparedness-civilian training and stockpiles, and 15 per cent is earmarked for chapter use.

"The reason for this particular report," he concluded, "is to give those millions of Americans who contributed their money to our last war fund a clearer conception of how their dollars are working for Victory. As you know, the Red Cross will not conduct another financial campaign until next March. It has long been the policy of the American National Red Cross not to participate in joint fund raising drives, because of its charter obligations. As President Roosevelt recently wrote: 'The character of the Red Cross and its responsibilities are such that the national interests will best be served if the Red Cross maintains direct contact with the people for the membership and support necessary for its work at home and abroad.' "

Lowering Draft Age Is Important To Young Men

"Lowering of the draft age to 18 years is bringing most of the young men of America face to face with the first really important decision of their lives," Russell W. Bryant, recruiter in charge of the Sherman Navy recruiting district said Monday. "Most young men of the 18-19 year age group have never had to give a great deal of thought to the future and now suddenly they are confronted with something that threatens to disrupt what few plans they had made. Of course, most of them realize that they would probably have to go into the armed services at some future date, but there was always the possibility that the war would end before they reached the draft age.

"There is no way of predicting the length of the war," the recruiter said, "but most observers are of the opinion that it will last several more years. This means that practically all of these young men will have little opportunity to complete their education after the war is over. Their best hope for a gainful future is to enter a branch of the service that will teach them something they can use in civilian life. The United States Navy offers them this very thing. In the Navy they will be required to learn one or more of 49 different trades and professions, practically every one of which is to be found represented in any community of 1,500 population.

"The seriousness of the situation with which we are confronted necessitates calling these boys into service and if the United States is to continue the progress that has marked its course since 1776, then it is absolutely essential that these boys be compensated in some measure for the educational sacrifice they are being forced to make. I can think of no better way to offset this sacrifice than by enlisting in the United States Navy.

"There are no 'ifs' and 'buts' about the Navy's educational advantages and opportunities. Every man in the Navy has two important functions. First, of course, is the military duty. Second, is the task of keeping the community activity functioning at maximum efficiency. A ship is nothing more than a floating community, differing from any North Texas community only in that there are no drones. Every man has a definite job to fill, making it imperative, therefore, that every man in the Navy learn his trade.

"The manner in which men are assigned to these various trades is one that assures absolutely no misfits. Where a man already has a trade the Navy assigns a petty officer rating at the time of his enlistment, so he takes no chances on what work he is to do or what salary he is to draw. The untrained man is given an aptitude test to determine his fitness for some particular kind of work. This system has been so carefully worked out that every man operates with the utmost efficiency because he is doing work for which he is mentally and physically fitted. This system of finding a man's proper place in life is in itself ample reason for Navy enlistment."

The recruiter urged that parents contact the Navy recruiting personnel of this district and learn first-hand the advantages the Navy has to offer their boys. The Sherman station is located in the basement of the federal building and is open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. each week day; 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Sundays. For the convenience of those residing in the outlying sections of the Sherman district traveling recruiters call at the McKinney post office each Monday and Tuesday, Gainesville "Victory House' 'each Wednesday, Denison post office each Thursday and Denton post office each Thursday and Saturday.

Among the men to enlist in the United States Navy through the Sherman recruiting station during the past week was J. T. Powell, 1311 North Coleman Street, McKinney.

Silver Spoon, 150 Years Old, Is Proud Possession

A silver spoon, bearing the family name of "Graves," and believed to be at least 150 years old, was shown this Editor one day this week by our good friend, W. Sims Cameron, well-known McKinney banker, who is associated with the Central National Bank.

The spoon, in good condition, is a part of a set made in St. Louis, one spoon belonging to each of the children of the late F. B. (Beecher) Cameron and wife, including Mr. Cameron, George W. Cameron, Miss Ione Cameron, Mrs. Henry Miller, Mrs. H. C. Lott and F. G. Cameron, the latter of Dallas.

The spoons were passed down by their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Graves, and who in turn received the spoons from their parents, the great-grandparents of the above mentioned McKinney and Dallas citizens.

Mrs. Clovis Rutledge and son, Ronald, have returned to their home in Bell, California, after a three week's visit in the homes of her parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Fults and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rutledge.

Higher Protein Rations Needed To Save Grain

Replacement Value Of Cottonseed Meal To Help The War Effort.

"If we don't use our feed supplies carefully, we will be scraping the bottom of our corn bin," the Secretary of Agriculture has warned in a strong plea to farmers to save grain and feed more high-protein feeds. "Farmers in general can profitably increase the use of high-protein feeds," he said, adding, "Efficient use of high-protein feeds will make grain supplies go farther."

Timeliness of this plea is evident not only from the need for more production, more efficient production and for saving grain; that it is very timely and important is indicated, also by Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates that the protein content of rations in 1942 will average only about 81 per cent of the estimated amount required to give balanced rations for all classes of livestock.

"The protein content of United States rations is still too low to give the most efficient production of livestock products," the Bureau concluded, in spite of increased production of high-protein feeds; and the Department of Agriculture in other releases has said: "From the standpoint of price, efficient production and increasing demand for livestock products, farmers should use more high-protein feeds this year."

How such an efficient protein concentrate as cottonseed meal can save grain in rations (as well as make the grain more efficient) is evident from these facts, which have been established by experience and Experiment Station research:

In fattening rations for beef cattle, fed as a protein supplement to balance rations, one pound of cottonseed meal or cake will save tw oand one-half to three pounds of corn, grain sorghums or other similar grain. When fed in amounts that exceed the minimum protein requirements to balance the ration, one pound of cottonseed meal is fully equal to a pound of corn or other grain. For this reason, feeders often find it advantageous to feed cottonseed meal in the feed lot in excess of protein requirements to replace grain; and cattle may be fattened on grass with excellent results by using cottonseed cake, or meal, as the sole concentrate.

For dairy cattle, protein can take the place of feeds that produce energy and fat, but these feeds cannot replace protein. Without enough protein to maintain her milk yield, a cow can only give less milk. For every gallon produced (4 per cent butterfat) a cow requires approximately one and one-half pounds of cottonseed meal to supply protein; and larger amounts may be fed when it is desired to save grain.

Pork production offers a very important opportunity to save grain this season, authorities point out. When the swine ration is balanced by a protein supplement, such as a mixture of 2 parts of cottonseed meal, 1 part tankage or fish meal and 1 part alfalfa meal, or half-and-half cottonseed meal and tankage or fish meal, each 100 pounds of this protein supplement will save approximately 400 to 600 pounds of corn or other grain.

For horses and mules, one pound of cottonseed meal will save about two pounds of corn or oats in a balanced ration. Idle stock can be carried through the winter in good condition on cottonseed meal and hulls alone; and small amounts of grain combined with meal and hulls make efficient rations for working horses and mules.

In these ways, the use of cottonseed meal in livestock rations will have an added importance to livestock producers this season, feeding authorities point out, when grain-saving is essential as well as more efficient production of a larger volume of food for Victory."

Corporal A. M. Nichols, Jr., of Melissa has been appointed instructor in instrument flying operations at Chanute Field, Illinois. Mr. Nichols enlisted in the Army Air Corps in January, attended North Texas State Teachers College at Denton. He was stationed for several months at Sheppard Field, Wichita Falls, working for a time in the post office of the field. Before entering the service he was an employee of the National Biscuit Company in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Whited, Route 2, Blue Ridge, were shopping in McKinney Saturday. We acknowledge a pleasant call from Mr. Whited to the Daily Courier-Gazette and the Weekly Democrat-Gazette office.

Grow Your Own Meat At Home

Every farm family can be self sustaining in its home meat supply. The first step is to get a young calf and pig and feed them, says Roy W. Snyder, animal industries specialist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

Mr. Snyder advises against killing a fove or six-month ?old calf which weighs only about 300 pounds. Feed it until it weight at least 500 for a much better quality of meat. Sweetbreads, tongue, heart, liver, brains and the tripe, as well as the intestinal fat should be saved when the animal is slaughtered, he says. Take extra care that the hide is not cut or scored during skinning, because a perfect hide brings a better price and is most sought by tanners.

Finally, Snyder suggests processing beef or pork so that none may be lost by spoliage. County Extension agents are prepared to advise on home meat preservation.

Formation of a four-family meat ring is another efficient method of maintaining the home meat supply. Frequently of killing would depend upon the needs and facilities for storage of the families forming the ring. However ,Mr. Snyder believes that slaughtering a 500 or 600-pound beef each two weeks, or once a month, would be ideal. An animal of that weight would provide each family with about 85 pounds of meat. But as a family averaging five persons probably wouldn't eat this quantity as fresh meat, se suggests canning some of the surplus for use during hot weather, and brining some for steak, boiling or even roasting.

A small meat ring reduces the amount of canning one family must resort to to make full use of a whole beef, Mr. Snyder says.

Turkey Grading School Will Be Held At Waco

School Will Be Open To Anyone Desiring To Attend Says Official.

A turkey grading school, sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be held at Waco October 26 and 27, George P. McCarthy, poultryman for the A. and M. College Extension Service, announces. Lester Kilpatrick of the Agricultural Market Administration will be in charge. The school will be open to any one desiring to attend.

Grading schools were started in 1932 in several turkey-growing states and 500,000 pounds were graded that year. In 1941, more than 50,000,000 pounds of turkeys were graded. The grading service is conducted through cooperative arrangements with the Texas Extension Service, state department of agriculture and USDA supervisors It is available through the Agricultural Marketing Administration to producers, poultry packers handled or as specified by contracts, McCarthy says.

Students attending the schools are taught by a practical method which gives them opportunity first to see how grading is done, then they do it themselves under the supervision of specialists. To obtain a license for grading the student must pass a rigid examination. After receiving a license he works under supervision of federal-state authorities.

McCarthy says that government-graded turkeys reach the consumer with a tag showing U. S. grade and the producer's or dealer's name fastened to the wing. Four established grades for turkeys have been in effect since 1932, namely: U. S. special (or AA); U. S. prime (or A); U. S. choice (or B), and U. S. Commercial (or C). These are applied separately to four classifications—young hens, young toms, old hens, and old toms.

AMERICANS MUST PREPARE FOR THE RESPONSIBILITY OF MASS FEEDING, SAYS AUTHORITY

Mrs. Arvilla Patison, Community Natural Gas Company Home Economist, Urges Enrollment In The American Red Cross Canteen Course In McKinney.

Enemy bombs may never hit this country but we must prepare for responsibility of mass feeding that would be our should this area be bombed and civilians evacuated to McKinney territory. So said Mrs. Arvilla Patison, Community Natural Gas Company home economist, as she urged enrollment in the American Red Cross canteen course she will conduct here two weeks beginning October 26.

MRS. ARVILLA PATISON.

Free to the public, the course is sponsored by the Women's Defense Corps canteen unit headed by Mrs. Karl Talkington. Classes will be held in the high shcool cafeteria each night, except Saturday and Sunday, beginning at 7 o'clock. The course is divided into ten hours of lecture work and ten hours of actual practice feeding.

Mrs. Patison will instruct the class on what vitamins should be eaten, in what foods they are found, and how to cook the foods to preserve the nutritive value. She will distribute a booklet entitled "Vim, Vigor, Vitamins for Victory" which gives the government food yardstick, the sources of essential foods, where to find each vitamin and many other food facts including suggested menus.

"Although we dislike facing the prospect," Mrs. Patison said, "It is entirely possible that McKinney may be called upon to feed hundreds of evacuees from bombed areas before this war is over. The task of feeding hundreds of men, women and children suffering from shock and exposure is entirely different from preparing meals for the average family. It is most important that McKinney women take advantage of this free canteen course in order to prepare for any emergency that may arise."

The home economist pointed out that the course meets the needs for emergency feeding during widespread epidemics, in disasters such as fires, explosions, floods and windstorms, and in disasters resulting from sabotage and bombings that might require the evacuation of areas. As home economist, Mrs. Patison serves 87 towns for the gas company. She is a qualified nutrition instructor for the American Red Cross and has recently organized and conducted such classes in many towns in her territory. For several years she was home economist for an Oklahoma concern, and in this work conducted a series of radio programs for two years and wrote a column on home service published in twelve Oklahoma newspapers. She is a native of Tulsa where she graduated from high school. Mrs. Patison attended Northwestern State Teachers College at Tahlequah, Oklahoma, and received her degree from Tulsa University.

Canteen course students may receive a certificate if they hold a nutrition course certificate not over three years old, Mrs. Patison pointed out. However, those who do not hold a nutrition certificate may take the canteen course, later taking up nutrition, and when the nutrition course is completed they will receive botn canteen and nutrition certificates.

FARM WORK SHOP EQUIPPED AT PRINCETON; BEGIN NEW PHASE OF WAR WORK

R. L. Barrett, Teacher Of Vocational Agriculture And Supervisor Of Rural War Production Training, OSYA, Says New Course To Begin In East Collin Town.

R. L. Barrett, Teacher of Vocational Agriculture of the Princeton High School and Supervisor of Rural War Production Training OSYA, announces to all farmers in the Princeton area the beginning of a new phase of work there at the Princeton School year. He says:

"1. Through the aid of the State and Federal governments we have completely equipped a farm workshop here on the school grounds. This shop is equipped with $1255 worth of tools and equipment and also has 200 agricultural text books and 3000 experiment station bulletins.

"2. Therefore, we are completely equipped to teach most any phase of Agriculture, Electricity, Sheet Metal, Welding, Blacksmithing, Woodwork, and Mechanics.

"3 In addition to training high school boys in the modern and scientific principles and practices of farming, we are also offering the following training programs to adult men and women of the community this year:

A. The Operation Care and Repair of Farm Machinery including the construction of some farm implements. This course will include training in mechanics, welding, woodwork, blacksmithing, and electricity as applied to farm machinery and equipment (Notice. The shop will be opened up to farmers in this course so that they can work on any farm implement or machine that needs repairs. No charges will be made for this work other than the actual cost of materials used.)

Training in this course will be offered every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night from 8:00 to 11:00 beginning October 19 and ending December 25.

Any person over 17 years of age and who is not now in school may take this course free of charge.

This course is intended for the farmer as a means of overhauling his machinery and equipment.

B. Increasing Milk Production. This course will include discussions in the proper feeding and management of dairy cows to economically produce the largest possible amount of milk from each cow.

Training in this course will be offered every Tuesday and Thursday night from 8:00 to 10:00 beginning Nov. 10 and ending Dec. 10.

Any person over 17 years of age and who is not now in school may take this course free of charge.

"C. Increased egg production. This course will include discussions in the proper feeding and management of hens to economically produce the largest possible number of eggs from each hen. Training in this course will be offered every Tuesday and Thursday night from 8:00 to 10:00 beginning Dec. 15 and ending January 14.

Any person over 17 years of age and who is not now in school may take this course free of charge.

"D. Increasing Pork Production. This course will include discussions in the proper feeding and management of hogs to economically produce the largest amount of pork possible from each hog. (Also pig production). Training in this course will be offered every Tuesday and Thursday night from 8:00 to 10:00 beginning Jan. 19 and ending Feb. 18.

Any person over 17 years of age and who is not now in school may take this course free of charge.

"E. A repeat of course No. A above. Operation, Care and repair of farm machinery including some construction. Training in this second course will be offered every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night from 8:00 to 11:00 beginning December 28 and ending March 5.

This entire program will be known as War Production Training and is offered for the purpose of assisting framers to meet their goals of production. More Food For Freedom is the aim of al concerned. You are invited to attend the next meeting."

McKinney Young Man Likes Life In U. S. Navy

JOHN L. HOLBERT.

John L. Holbert, son of Mrs. W. L. Holbert and the late Mr. Holbert, 302 Pearson Street, this city, is another Collin County boy who likes the Navy. This is evidenced by the fact that he volunteered in the Navy sixteen years ago and has continued in the service. John was reared and educated in McKinney where he has a host of friends and has on a few occasions during his sixteen-year service visited his relatives and friends here, always having many interesting experiences to tell.

Until recently he was instructor at the training school where he was made chief, before being transferred to a ship in New York, being Chief Master at Arms of the ship. He is rated as Ship's Boatman mate, and his ship is "somewhere in the Atlantic," its direct location of which cannot be made known.

McKinney is justly proud of her fine sons who have gone into the various branches of the service and are doing their best to help their country win the war and thus restore peace to our people.

East Texans Are Asked To Spot Stunting Cadets

East Texas citizens are being called upon by officials of the Greenville Basic Flying School to cooperate in "spotting" cadet-pilots stunting or flying low over populated areas, Col, Herbert M. Newstrom, commanding officer, said.

The performance of unnecessary acrobatics or dangerously low flying is strictly against all rules of the Army Air Forces and the cooperation of civilians throughout this section of the state is urged in "spotting" such practices, Col. Newstrom said.

When such stunting is noticed civilians should record the large number on the fuselage (body of the plane), the color (silver or blue) and the exact time of the performance, Lt. Col. Ralph C. Rockwood, director of training at the local school said. Proper disciplinary action, which will go a long way towards eliminating accidents and the endangering of lives of the young cadet-pilots as well as civilians, will be taken when necessary, it was stated.

Officials of the local flying school were prompted to ask such cooperation this week when a telephone call from a nearby town revealed that a plane, believed to be from the local field, had been stunting at an uncomfortably low altitude, endangering the lives of civilians as well as the cadet.

Cadets are permitted to fly over towns only on authorized cross country flights and then at high altitudes. Acrobatics, a part of the basic training, are to be performed over open country only, Col. Rockwood said.

Funeral Services Held At Frisco For Mrs. Neal

Funeral services for Mrs. Sallie Frances Neal, 78, of Frisco, were held at the Baptist Church there Wednesday afternoon. She had been a resident of that community for thirty-eight years.

Contract Is Let For Utilities At War Hospital

The District United State Engineers Office of Denison, Texas, has informed President C. Hansford Ray and Secretary W. Hammond Moore of the McKinney Senior Chamber of Commerce of the awarding of another contract for the war hospital in McKinney. The contract let October 12, is for an amount less than $100,000.00 for the construction of underground utilities to the Parrott-Oldt Company of Dallas.

The company has established offices on the site and is ready to begin its phase of the work.

Actual work is getting under way on the hospital, considerable lumber having been unloaded and with grading for the streets and drainage already in progress. The army engineers have set up downtown offices in the Dowell Building on South Kentucky Street, where a large force of stenographers, clerks and typists are at work.

Three Sons Of McKinney Couple Serving Country

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Greer of McKinney are proud of the record of three sons who are in the service of their country. R. C. (Cecil) Greer, Jr., who is in Indiana, writes his parents that he is getting along well, being a mechanic and parachute rigger.

Their other sons in the service are Oscar Greer, mechanic in the Field Artillery in California and Coyt Greer in the Medical Corps in Louisiana.

These three well-known McKinney young men are ably serving in their fields of endeavor and are proving a record of which their relatives and friends are proud.

Miss Wilma Bryson called at the Daily Courier-Gazette Monday and ordered George Hall's paper changed from Los Angeles to Love Field, Dallas.

Sugar Rations Are Unchanged For Home Use

Sugar rations for home use will remain unchanged at one-half pound per person each week during the Period Nov. 1 to Dec. 15, but industrial and institutional consumers will receive less in November and December than in the preceding two months.

The Office of Price Administration said Thursday stamp No. 9 would be good for three pounds of sugar between Nov. 1, and Dec. 15. Stamp No. 8, which covered a ten-week period, and calls for five pounds, ends October 31.

Institutional users, including hotels and restauranteurs, will receive 60 per cent of their sugar base for November and December. These users received 75 per cent, including a 25 per cent bonus in the preceding two months.

Industrial users will receive 70 per cent of their sugar base, compared with 80 per cent, including a 10 per cent bonus, in September and October.

Judge And Mrs. T. O. Murray Have Family Dining

Judge and Mrs. T. O. Murray enjoyed having their children home Sunday for a family dining. All their children were present except one son Frank Murray, who is in the U. S. Navy, being stationed at Norfolk, Virginia.

The dining was in honor of the youngest son, Paul Gough Murray, who left Monday night for Alameda, California, having been inducted into the United States Coast Guard. Paul has been working with the Gas Company in Wichita Falls and was joined at his some here Sunday by his wife from Waco; his sisters, Miss Mildred Murray of Austin and Mrs. J. P. Cobb and Mr. Cobb of Fort Worth and the two McKinney brothers, Percy and Tom Murray and their families.

Paul left Fort Worth enroute to Alameda to begin his training, and was put in charge of his troop while on the trip. He was delighted with this duty, having a wallet full of money for disbursing the expenses of the group enroute and Paul remarked that he felt he was on his way to a keen vacation. Just fifteen years ago his brother, Frank, left for the U. S. Navy and was also put in charge of his group at the time of his departure. He has continued in the service all these years and is now in charge of the equipment depot at Norfolk.

RENT-SAVING AMENDMENT IS ON NOVEMBER 3 BALLOT

An economy measure for Texas, to stop the state's paying out over $100,000, a year for office rent in Austin, will be before the voters in the November 3 general election, it was pointed out in a joint statement of Sen. George Moffett of Chillicothe and Rep. Herbert F. Brawner of Joshua.

Adoption of a constitutional amendment to apply the present rent payments to construction of a state office building, and permanently ending this huge outlay for rent, will achieve this purpose, the legislators declared.

Sen. Moffett and Rep. Brawner are co-authors of the amendment which appears on the general election ballot as amendment No. 5. They pointed out that both the house and the senate gave it virtually unanimous approval, in submitting it for a vote of the people.

The proposed state office building will not be started, they stressed, until after the war, when building materials are available without interfering with the war effort.

The amendment permits the state to pay for the building entirely out of money it is now spending for rent. Further, it makes the short-term bond issue to finance the building eligible for investment of the state permanent school fund, which means that the state would pay itself all the interest on the bond issue. The measure is favored by the state educational authorities who have charge of safely investing the permanent school fund.

When the amendment has been adopted, its sponsors outlined, and when war conditions permit, the legislature will pass an enabling act to carry out its purposes. This will direct the board of control to erect a suitable structure. It would authorize the board of education to invest permanent school funds in the bond issues—which is limited to $2,000,000—and it will provide that the present state appropriations for rent be put into the fund for paying off the short-term bonds. Then, when the bonds are paid off, the state will own the structure, and the payment of the huge annual rent costs will be ended permanently.

The state now rents office space in Austin in more than a dozen office and business buildings. It also rents a considerable number of old residences, and even an abandoned funeral parlor. It is now trying to use the basement of the capitol for work of some of its departments with a serious loss in efficiency.

The supreme court and court of criminal appeals are now in the capitol. Many of their archives and records are stored, with other important state documents, in the capitol basement which has been pointed out by every recent legislature as a serious fire hazard. For several years, the Texas Bar association and the Texas State Bar have labored continuously to secure adequate and suitable housing for the appellate courts. The bar now has a committee cooperating with state authorities, in the effort to work out housing of state courts, departments and agencies, so that the courts will have better facilities for their work.

The state already has dedicated a vacant half-block of land adjoining the capitol grounds, as the site for a building. This was done when the legislature tried to secure construction of a small building merely to house the courts, but the plan was expanded by the legislature also to provide for the departments now paying rent and to save the enormous outlay of money paid out as rent. No purchase of land for a site is involved.

No objection so far has been heard from any source to this economy measure, its sponsors reported. They urged that Texas voters be familiar with the benefits which will arise from adoption of the state office building amendment, and not permit indifference to defeat the proposal.

"Accidental," Says Next Accompanist Of Kate Smith

It was strictly accidental, says Milton Page, ex-student of North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, who is slated to be Kate Smith's next accompanist.

Page, who is noted for making is piano talk and his own compositions, sell, recently left Ted Fio Rita's band to go to New York and Tin Pan Alley.

As he was playing several of his compositions fo rthe professional editor of a music publishing house, the editor interrupted to tell him that his songs had great possibilities, but his piano playing had greater possibilities. He thereupon invited Page to play an audition for Kate Smith. Page did; Miss Smith's orchestra leade rapproved; and the job goes to the NTSTC ex as soon as the present pianist is inducted in the Army.

At present, Page, who has played at the Milam cafeterias in Austin and San Antonio, is organist in the Cafe Rouge at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Allies Plan Burma Drive

Unofficial observers believe that a series of conferences among the supreme American, British and Chinese military commanders in India, indicate the allies would open an offensive to drive the Japanese from Burma before the end of next Spring.

Those participating were Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of all U. S. forces in China and India; Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in chief in India; Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, who is presently without command, and Gen. Lo Choy-King, Chinese expeditionary force commander.

Although nothing official had been issued on the meetings, it was considered significant that the top allied military chiefs met just at the close of the monsoon season which makes military operations in Burma virtually impossible from May to October.

Next month after the fall winds have blown away the heavy blanket of clouds and the sun has dried the sodden mountain roads and trails leading from India into Burma, it will be possible to transport invading forces and supplies into the enemy-held territory.

However, even arm chair tacticians realize that an allied offensive probably coul dnot be opened that early because of the numerous problems and tremendous preparations involved. They also know that if the allies hope to retake Burma before 1943 they must strike within the next six months or wait another whole year for the next rainless season.

Key Posts Are Made Known By Draft Officials

National Selective Service headquarters have issued a list of 92 occupations in the communication services, including newspapers, radio telephone and telegraph, which have been certified as activity essential to the support of the war effort.

The list, confined to those occupations requiring six months or more of training and preparation, will be used to guide local draft boards in classifying registrants for possible occupational deferments.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, said that in classifying registrants employed in those activities, a consideration should be given to:

1. The training, qualification, or skill required for proper discharge of the duties involved in the occupation.

2. The training, qualification, or skill of the registrant to engage in his occupation.

3. The availability of persons with his qualifications or skill, or who can be trained to his qualification, to replace the registrant, and the time in which such replacement can be made.

LIKES THE NAVY.

SERVING FIVE YEARS IN the navy during the first world war was not enough sea action for H. E. Crice, McKinney business man, who has re-enlisted in the navy and who is stationed in the Bermudas. Mr. Crice writes relatives that he is enjoying life in the United States navy and that it seems like old times to be a sailor again.

KEYS IN THE 1860's.

BACK IN THE 1860's THE bigger the key the more substantial it was, it would appear from an old key that has been brought from another age into the scrap pile in McKinney's key collection, says Jim Cantrell, Chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee for that purpose. The key, several inches in length and heavy, was donated by Jim Thomas, retired postal employe of the city, whose father, the late James W. Thomas used it in unlocking the McKinney Post Office in 1868. Mr. Thomas' key collection is on display in a downtown show window, where it is attracting great attention.

VOTING IN AMERICA.

DURING THE REVOLUTIONary period, we are told, only about 6 per cent of the inhabitants over 21 were allowed to vote. Within the last few years about 50 per cent of adult Americans have had the right to vote. During the early days of this country many different conditions, such as sex, race, residence, citizenship, religion and tax payment, were responsible for the size of the vote.

Among some conditions of voting which are still imposed on voters are the nonpayment of poll tax, being proved mentally unfit to vote, criminals and such state rulings as the white primary rule in Texas.

MENUS FOR THANKSGIVING, YULE ARMY DINNERS FIXED.

MENUS FOR THANKSGIVing and Christmas dinners have been announced by the War Department to give cooks and bakers in widely-scattered army posts plenty of time to prepare their festive provisions.

The Thanksgiving menu: Fruit cup, roast turkey, dressing and giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, peas, corn, tomato salad, stuffed celery, assorted pickles, bread, butter, pumpkin pie, apples, grapes, coffee, candies, nuts.

For Christmas: Fresh fruit cup, cream of celery soup, roast young turkey, dressing and giblet gravy, cranberry-orange relish, celery, olives, mixed pickles, radish roses, snowflake potatoes, green beans, tomatoes, corn pudding, hearts of lettuce with Russian dressing, hot rolls, butter, mince pie, pumpkin pie, ice cream, spice cake, grapes, oranges, apples, mixed nuts, mints, hard candy, and coffee.

FIRE LASSIES NOW ANSWER ALARMS IN WYOMING TOWN.

LOCK, ROLLING STOCK, AND water barrel, the fire department at Dayton, Wyoming, has been taken over by the women.

So when smoke rolls from the chicken house of Mrs. Happy Latoush or from the second-story window of Mrs. Adams, it's the fire lassies, not the laddies, who go roaring down Main Street.

"The idea originated with my neighbor, Mrs. Latoush," says Mrs. Hans Kleiber, who with Mrs. Jack Reavis was elected co-chief of the department, now that all the men have marched to war or to war projects. "Last winter she had to stand helplessly by while the few available men tried to manipulate the fire apparatus. Her chicken house burned to the ground."

AMERICAN INDIANS ON WARPATH.

INTO A GENERAL STORE IN the Indian reservation town of Fort Hall, Idaho, trudged an old Indian woman, her shoulders wrapped in a dusty blanket. From the wrap's volumnious folds she drew forth a well-worn war stamp booklet. Purchasing two ten-cent stamps, she affired them skillfully, then turned to the storekeeper and began to haggle with him about the price of a hoe.

A bystander asked: "What are you going to do with the hoe?"

She replied: "My son fights, I work."

Her response typifies the willingness with which 400,000 American Indians are working and fighting for the land their ancestors loved.

From Indian Commissioner John Collier down, employes of the Office of Indian Afafirs are generous in their praise of the Indians' participation in the victory program.

"There isn't any group of farmers contributing more to the Department of Agriculture's food for freedom goals than are the Indians," says Superintendent C. L. Graves, of Fort Hall.

Right now there are scores of young Fort Hall men and some girls at work in plane factories and shipyards or studying in vocational schools.

Too, Indian men are subject to selective service, and more than 3,000 are serving in the armed forces.

Children's Music Club Of McKinney Elects Officers

The Children's Federated Music Club of McKinney met Sunday afternoon at the home of Judge and Mrs. T. O. Murray, this being the Club's first meeting this fall. The election of officers for the ensuing year was in order.

The old officers were re-elected for another year. They are: Frank Murray, president; James Dickerson, vice president; Rubylin Slaughter, secretary; Mrs. S. J. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Earl Slaughter and Mrs. T. O. Murray, sponsors.

Miss Dorothy Louise James and Billie Earl Raley were elected delegates to the district convention in Dallas, at the Baker Hotel November 21st, Mary Ellen Standley was elected Club reporter to this convention.

The roll call was answered by giving a composer's name. A musical program followed. One of the sponsors gave a talk on Irving Berlin, our Siberian-American artist, who never had a music teacher and doesn't read notes, yet out of his humbleness and hunger of heart, taught himself and became master of his craft.

Refreshments, fruit punch, cookies and gingerbread were served. The club adjourned to meet November 15th with Mrs. Joe Moore at Melissa.

Collin county music pupils have the following part on the programs for the convention at Dallas November 21st:

"Magic Spell" Reinhard W. Gebhard, Mary Lee Murray.

Second Valse de Concert, Rhinehard W. Gebhardt, Sybil Moore, Melissa.

Duet "Hungarian Concert Polka," Alfoldy—Rubylin Slaughter and Frank Murray.

At the luncheon program to be held in the Baker hotel, a lovely dance "Russian Ballet" will be given by Carolyn Lois Morris, with Mrs. S. J. Smith as accompanist.

Several years ago the North Ward Parent Teacher association adopted a project that makes it possible for any child to have music lessons for one dollar a month. Mrs. S. J. Smith teaches a class at the North Ward and another at the L. C. Kenyon home. Her pupils never fail to bring back honor from these district and state contests. In the gamut of arts it still holds true "The proof of the pudding is the eating."

What You Buy With WAR STAMPS

Five hundred bullets recently riddled an American plane . . . and still her crew returned home safely. First aid in flight helped every man recover from his wounds and return quickly to action. Aviation first aid kits cost $5 and contain everything needed for treatment where a medical officer is not available.

When you invest $5 in War Stamps, your money may end up in the form of one of those first aid kits in a plane operating over enemy territory. Help keep our fighting forces the best equipped in the world through the regular purchase of War Stamps. As your Schools At War program points out, it is the duty of every American school child to make any reasonable sacrifice to buy War Bonds and Stamps.

Henry A. Wiley Camp Holds Regular Meeting

Spanish War Veterans Voted To Take Part In Armistice Day Program Here November 11.

Henry A. Wiley Camp No. 29, United Spanish War Veterans held a splendid meeting on Friday Night Oct. 1. Due to circumstances over which they had no control, our distinguished guests J. H. Daugherty and wife of Dallas, Texas, were unable to attend the meeting. Mr. Daugherty is Senior Vice Commander of the Texas State Department of the U. S. W. V.

Communications from our National Headquarters show that only 140,00 of the more than half million men who served in the Spanish American War are now living, yet the ones who survive are backing "Uncle Sam" one hundred per cent in the present war.

The Camp voted to take part in the Armistice Day parade on Nov. 11th. All Spanish War Veterans in Collin County are urged to be in McKinney on that date and take part in same.

Thirty veterans in Collin County are all who are left of the more than two hundred who served in the Spanish American War from this county.

WALTER C. LEWIS, Sr. Vice Commander.

J. P. THOMAS, Adj.

Horace Hinton, manager of the County Farm, for County Commissioner Joe Bunch, was a pleasant business visitor at this office. He has been with Mr. Bunch for several years and makes a splendid county foreman. While here he ordered the Daily Courier-Gazette sent to his address.

Attends War Conference Of The American Hospital Association In St. Louis

TOM M. SCOTT, CHAIRMAN OF THE McKINNEY CITY HOSPITAL BOARD OF GOVERNORS ENJOYS CONFERENCE AT WHICH GOVERNMENT REPRESENTATIVES WERE PRESENT.

Tom M. Scott, Chairman of the McKinney City Hospital Board of Governors, has returned home from St. Louis, Missouri, where he attended the War Conference of the American Hospital Association and all Government hospitals which convened in St. Louis, Missouri, October 12 to 16. Fifty government men were present from Washington. The 3,200 member institutions, representing 85 per cent of all beds in viluntary hospitals of this country and an increasingly large number of tax-supported institutions are facing problems which are more difficult of solution than at any time in the past forty years of their history.

The coordinated thought and action of the trustees who direct and the staff who administer and operate the hospitals was stressed at the meeting. To this end the War Conference has brought together leaders in Government policies and authorities on Government regulations affecting the hospitals, including Paul V. McNutt and others. One of the most interesting speakers, Mr. Scott says, was Capt. McDonald, a nurse on Bataan, who successfully made her escape at the Japanese occupation.

Miss Leta Lowry At U. S. Naval Training School

McKinney Young Lady Recently Joined The WAVES; Sent To Indiana For Training.

Friends in McKinney have received cards from Miss Leta Lowry, who is in the U. S. Naval Training school at Bloomington, Indiana. Miss Lowry, it will be remembered, joined the WAVES a few weeks ago, enlisting in Dallas, from which place she was sent to Indiana for training. She says food is wonderful and the scenery is beautiful in that section and that she is quite happy there. Miss Lowry has many friends in McKinney, who are pleased to know that she is liking her new work so well.

News From War Front

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said that the Japanese have not used their maximum force of 15,000 men in the fighting on Guadalcanal Island. The United States Navy is in the vicinity and ready to act when called upon. Secretary Knox said that land based planes will play an important part in the battle. Japan has called the activity of the Americans in the Pacific a general counterattack.

● ●

Indications point to some move by the Allies in Burma, possibly to retake that country from the Japanese and reopen the Burma road so that supplies can be sent by that route to China.

● ●

An early Allied offensive is indicated in Egypt. Heavy raids on Malta by the Germans, who lost 116 planes, indicates that the axis are sending reinforcements to General Rommel. Allied planes have been in North Africa and in the Mediterranean, attacking enemy concentrations and shipping, and also bombing Tobruk.

● ●

Ninety-two jobs have been furnished by government officials to draft boards considered essential. When a Selectee is called in one of the categories just made known, he must prove to the draft board that his job is essential, when a deferment will be granted until someone is trained to take his place.

One million dollars damage was done to Virginia roads and a half million dollars damage to the Virginia apple crop by recent floods in that state. Traffic in the state has been resumed, it is said.

AGED MEN AND WOMEN ARE HELPING TO DEFEND THE CITY; BRING FOOD, AMMUNITION

BRITISH NAVY HAS SUNK OR DAMAGED 530 SUBMARINES SINCE WAR BEGAN.

BULLETINS.

Winter has stepped into the battle for Stalingrad at a time long after the nazis hoped to control the city. Faced with perhaps their greatest foe, General Winter, the nazis are finding every street heavily fortified by the Russians who continue to repulse the German attacks. The Russians intend to hold the city, if possible. Aged men and women are helping the army by bringing food and ammunition across the river. The weather is unfavorable in the Caucasus.

◆ ◆ ◆

The British Navy, since that country entered the war, has sunk or damaged 530 submarines, and British officials again said the war at sea is important. Keeping the sea lanes open is the most important thing to be done, and necessary if a second front is to be established.

◆ ◆ ◆

Warships of the United States are joining in the battle for the Solomons, bombarding and blowing up ammunition dumps which the Japanese planned to use in their attacks on Guadalcanal. The United States forces are attacking the enemy from the air. The navy said that no recent troop activity or enemy landings on Guadalcanal have been reported. With American warships appearing on the scene, the possibility of a naval engagement is seen by officials.

The battle for Stalingrad continues, with the heaviest fighting in the factory settlement in the Northern part of the city. The Russians said that all German attacks had been repulsed, after the Soviets had yielded one block the preceding night. The Germans are using tank and infantry attacks in an effort to take the city. Northwest of the city Russian troops beat off all enemy attacks.

War Price, Rationing Board Has Pamphlets For Collin Merchants

Elton Riggs, Chairman Of Board, Says Pamphlets Explain How To Set Ceiling Prices For Men's And Boys' Tailored Garments And Staple Work Clothing.

Merchans who sell clothing were advised today by Elton Riggs, Chairman of the Collin County War Price and Rationing Board that his office now has a quantity of pamphlets explaining how to set ceiling prices for men's and boys' tailored garments and staple work clothing.

"A quantity of these pamphlets is now available for any merchant who will come by the office," Mr. Riggs said, "and the pricing of these articles of clothing is explained in a very clear manner."

It is important that every merchant inthe city (or county) have one of these pamphlets for a reference in his store. One of the pamphlets deals with Maximum Price Regulation No. 177, governing the prices for men's and boys' tailored garments such as suits with shorts pants, suits with knicker or golf pants, suits with long pants, and suits with breeches; separate coats, including sport coats, sack coats, and blouses made in the manner commonly used for coats, separate vests, ceremonial and religious vestments, topcoats and overcoats.

The other pamphlet deals with Maximum Price Regulation No. 208, governing the price of staple work clothing such as bib overalls, overall jackets, waist-band overalls or dungarees, work shirts and pants, one-piece work suits and work breeches, and such work clothing materials as denims, carded yarn shirting chambrays and coverts: finished jeans and drills, cottonades, whipcords, moleskins and twills.

Colored High School To Meet Sherman High

Commandos Of McKinney, Coached By Weldon Berry, Expect One Of Best Games Of Season Friday Night At Newsome Field In McKinney.

Weldon Berry, Coach of the colored high school team, known as the Commandos, says that the local colored team will play the Sherman High Panthers at Newsome Field in McKinney at 8:15 o'clock in what will likely be one of the best games of the season. Coach Berry says that Sherman has one of the best colored teams in North Texas, having defeated Gainesville and losing to Bonham. McKinney has defeated Terrell 19-to-6, and their game with Gainesville was rained out.

Coach Berry says that a downtown street parade will be staged at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon by the Doty Colored High School and the Sherman colored band and pep squad. He says there is a great rivalry between McKinney and Sherman and for that reason a good game is expected.

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right.—Abraham Lincoln.

Was Christ a man like us? Oh, let us try if we then, too, can be such men as he.—Arnold.

At least 2,500,000 persons have vanished since the Germans conquered Poland, and almost half of them have been slaughtered by the nazis, said a statement of the Polish government-in-exile in London. Other tens of thousands have died of starvation.

An entire family of Ackerly of near Lamesa, is now serving the Nation, with the acceptance last week of the Mother of the family as a WAAC. Mr. and Mrs. William M. Wood and their two sons are all in the armed services. Mr. Wood, a contractor, is an Army private at Toledo, Ohio. One son, James, is at Brownwood and the other, Tommy, is with the Army Air Forces.

LET'S HAVE A TEXTILE COURSE.

The value of a long range program relative to the establishment of a Textile Course in our High School is of vital interest to McKinney and the future of McKinney. The Texas Textile Mill has been a valuable asset both to our social, as well as economic life, and with prospects bright for the continued operation for many years the problem is one that we must meet and the way to meet it, is with the education of boys and girls in this worthwhile business.

These papers certainly do not wish to dictate the policies to the School Board but on the other hand we are aware that through sound education we can build a better manhood and womanhood and certainly the Textile Industry, of which we are very fortunate of having a mill here offers a trade and a good living. This mill will hire, as the years go on, more and more help and experienced help will "get the jobs first." McKinney will gain two-fold. It will keep these young men and women here. It will mean more sound citizens, who are earning their way in McKinney. Yes, indeed, it's a long range program, but it won't be long before we will have to have these young men and young women at the head of our industries so let's educate them for it.

FIREPROOF COTTON MATERIALS.

Fire proofing clothing, curtains, and other household fabrics is quite simple.

Mrs. Bernice Claytor, specialist in home improvement for the A. and M. College Extension Service, says the prevention-wise homemaker can fireproof any cotton fabrics which water will not damage. This is done by dipping them in a solution of borax and boric acid and water. It is necessary to re-dip the cloth whenever it is laundered, because the solution washes out.

"Make a solution of seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid, and two quarts of hot water," the specialist directs. "Keep stirring it until the water looks clear. Then dip the article you want to fireproof into the solution just as if you were rinsing it in water. Wring it out, hang it up to dry, and press in the usual way with a warm iron."

Here is one caution the specialist offers. The cloth must be dry when it is dipped, for otherwise the solution will be diluted and much less effective.

It is practical to fireproof such things as a man's work suit this way, or curtains for the kitchen, a cotton rug which lies in front of the living room fire, cloth pot lifters, an ironing board cover, or cotton insulation, Mrs. Claytor says. She adds that it is also possible to fireproof large articles of cloth such as upholstery, slip covers, or large rugs by spraying the solution on them.

COTTON STALKS DESTROYED BREED NO WEEVILS.

Starvation is the most effective and economical control of boll weevils, says Paul Gregg, assistant entomologist for the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. The extent of damage to cotton depends directly upon the number of weevils which emerge from hibernation per given unit each spring.

An average of 23 out of 1,000 will survive the winter if forced into hibernation between October 16 and 31. All immature stages will be detroyed if cotton stalks are cut and plowed under three or four inches. This will prevent the maturing of thousands of late weevils, the main source of the over-wintering generation. Trash, weeds and grass around the edges of the field and on the turn rows also should be destroyed, as weevils fly only a short distance to hibernate. When their food supply is curtailed weevils go into hibernation in a weakened or starved condition and few survive.

All farmers in a neighborhood or community should cooperate closely to do a thorough ob of destroying cotton stalks. Besides reducing the weevil population, plowing them under adds to the fertility of the soil, Mr. Gregg says. With early fall plowing, he adds, cotton may be planted in early spring and thereby encounter fewer weevils during the maturing period. "No doubt less cotton poison would be needed next season if every farmer cleaned his cotton field this fall."

Mr. Gregg explains that where it is not possible to plow stalks under, heavy grazing by livestock is of benefit. There is little danger to cattle in poisoned cottonfields two or three weeks after dusting and none after a rain or two. However, poison bags and other containers should be removed from fields.

But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness.—Matthew 6-23.

O, give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good; for His mercy endureth for ever.—Chronicles 16-34.

McKinney, long known as a town brim full of people who welcome strangers in the old fashioned southern way, has a wonderful opportunity of doing a real job in the next few months. The new Federal Hospital which is to be built here will bring hundreds of new people here. Let's give them a real McKinney Welcome. If you see a stranger on the street, speak to him. Better still, wouldn't it be better if you went up and introduced yourself and say, "Glad to have you in McKinney." Find out where he is from, what church he belongs to. That kind of hospitality will pay dividends three-fold, Mr. and Mrs. McKinney.

RURAL HEALTH SERVICE.

In a period when doctors are increasingly scarce in rural areas and in which health service is especially important in fitting men and women for Army service and for producing food for the United Nations, experiments like the one being conducted in six counties in the United States, including Cass and Wheeler Counties in Texas, have more than usual significance, says the Dallas News. Associations like those formed in the six selected counties give hope of remedying health conditions that in many farm communities have become alarming.

In Cass County 3,600 farm families are paying $6 to $50 a year for medical, dental and hospital care provided through membership in the county association. Regimentation is avoided, however. Through the co-operation of doctors and dentists, members have free choice in determining who shall serve them. They can change doctors or dentists as easily as non-members and can get the services of any specialists they need.

The association is locally administered in a democratic manner and should bring health services to many farm families who have been going without them for fear they would be unable to pay the bills. Now, by making easy payments that amount to about 6 per cent of each family's income, these essential services will be provided for in advance.

UNVARNISHED WISDOM.

Wendell Willkie added to his stature as a world statesman by the statement he issued in Chungking after his long interview with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, says the Dallas News. His opponents may say he is running for President again, but both his appeal for an all-out offensive and his plea for a Pacific Charter will find widespread agreement here as well as in Asia. The Chinese have been disappointed both in the amount of help we have sent them and in the failure of the western members of the United Nations to renounce fully their policies of imperialism.

Mr. Willkie reflected general Asiatic discontent when he appealed for liberty and equality for all nations and for definite assurances that the United Nations will not try to re-establish an outmoded system of imperialism. As he pointed out, it is not enough for us to tell Asiatics that Japanese rule will be worse than British rule or Dutch rule. Asiatics will fight for their freedom, but may not fight much to avoid a shift from one master to another.

Mr. Willkie has made his mission more than one of fact-finding, perhaps that is why the President seems disgruntled with him. But he has gained insight into the world situation and has every right to express his unofficial views. It happens that the views he has been expressing while on his tour are also held by many Americans at home. If some of these on the home front want to make more use of Willkie's leadership in winning the war and writing the peace, he can hardly be blamed for that.

GAS RATIONING NOT SO BAD AS ENVISIONED.

You will not credit OPA's statement that driving in the East is "off" 60 per cent unless you underline that sentence of the report which says that this is the decline in the operation of "private passenger cars," says the Richmond, Virginia, News-Leader. Commercial vehicles, as yet, show no comparable reduction, though almost every business house has cut its use of motor transportation.

OPA estimates that a saving of 150,000,000 miles of tire wear daily is being effected in the East, where 68 per cent of the cars are operating on "A" ration books. About 1,250,000 cars, or 18 per cent of the whole, have "B" as well as "A" books. Less than 1,000,000 have "C" books, from some of which, on delivery, coupons were withdrawn in advance.

By no means all holders of "C" books got 96 coupons, though some men seemed to think they would die if they did not get that preferred rating. In contrast is the encouraging statement by OPA that many of the holders of "A" books have found that they did not need even the moderate ration allowed them.

Fact is, in many cases, men and women who decided to curtail the use of their cars have been surprised to find how little inconvenience they suffered by cutting their mileage in half. Certainly, in tens of thousands of instances, patriotic motorists have been repaid, many times over, by the knowledge that their "hoofing" made possible the riding of others who could not walk to work.

CITIZEN WILLKIE.

If any one supposed that Mr. Willkie was making his present tour as the messenger boy of the administration, the repercussions of his brave and stirring words in Chungking, should end the misconception, says the New York Herald Tribune. Topics which neither the White House nor Downing Street as responsible governments might care to take up, are entirely proper subects for his opinions as a private and independent citizen. And he is discussing them with all his natural vigor and candor.

We are confident that the country as a whole will welcome and applaud these utterances. Both the American and British governments have lagged behind their peoples in making publicy clear the deep desire of the two nations to give all-out aid to Moscow and to Chungking. What Mr. Willkie has done in both capitals was to make clear beyond anyone's doubting the strength and sincerity of this desire.

As for the goals which Mr. Willkie expressed in general terms as the will of the peoples of the United Nations, they bore the same marks of genuineness. That is Mr. Willkie's great talent. Wherever he stands up to speak there are beyond misunderstanding truth and a passionate faith in freedom. His figure bulks as large in the hills of China as it did before Kremlin.

The service to the United Nations is correspondingly precious. There has been too much hesitation and caution by governments in face of the mounting crisis of the war. Americans, regardless of party, will be thankful for these sentences of blunt sincerity literally heard around the world.

25 YEARS AGO IN M'KINNEY

FROM THE FILES OF THE DAILY COURIER-GAZETTE

(Monday, Oct. 15, 1917.)

Fred Mitchell was a business visitor in McKinney today from Altoga.

Buck Isom of Ardath was among the business visitors in McKinney Saturday.

Homer Gay, student at S. M. U., came up to spend the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Gay.

Rev. Abner Snider has just sold his fine little tract of land two and a half miles South of McKinney to S. Weisman.

Mrs. P. Z. Littlefield has returned to her home at Sulphur Springs after a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Reynolds Oneal in this city.

Page Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Price, entertained the Rook Club Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents.

The official board has elected Mrs. Gibson Caldwell as organist of the First Methodist Church. Mrs. Caldwell is an accomplished musician and performer on the pipe organ. Mrs. C. P. Heard is director of the same choir.

Mrs. John Henderson and pretty little baby daughter of Ozona are visiting at the home of her father, J. K. P. Shrader in McKinney. Mrs. Henderson was formerly Miss Evelyn Shrader. "Grandpa" is a new honor for County Tax Assessor Shrader which he is wearing very proudly.

C. Wesley Goodin, wife and beautiful little daughter, Virginia D., visited briefly in McKinney Saturday. Mr. Goodin was reared here and was associated for many years with his father, D. Goodin in running a jewelry store.

Miss Lera Beth Gross of Weston has entered the Boyd High School of this city. She is the daughter of J. C. Gross, prominent farmer of that section of the county. She is rooming with her friend and neighbor, Miss Myra Mae Childress, who entered school at the first of the term. Miss Myra Mae is the daughter of H. F. Childress, also a prominent farmer of Weston.

William J. Rhea, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Rhea, has had but little experience with receptions and birthday parties, but he is boy enough, even in babyhod, to appreciate the value of little red carts, hammers and other toys for boys. Wednesday, October 17, Will J. Jr., was just a year old and his Mother baked him a lovely little birthday cake, the center of which was ornamented by one candle. Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Rhea, his grandparents, were present. His other grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Groves, of Waxahachie, could not be present but send their remembrances. He also received many other nice birthday presents. He is a fine baby boy with rosy cheeks and bright eyes, strong, healthy and well developed for a boy his age. We hope for him many more such happy birthdays.

TRANSPORTATION COMMITTEES ARE BEING SELECTED IN ALL 254 COUNTIES OF THE STATE

Creation of County Farm Transportation Committees in Texas' 254 counties was announced this week by B. F. Vance, Chairman, Texas USDA Board.

The first job of the new committee will be to assist farmers and truckers haul farm products and supplies in filling out applications for Certificates of War Necessity during national farm truck registration days, Oct. 22-24, the chairman explained.

Under a recent program announced by the Office of Defense Transportation, all farm trucks, trailors, busses, taxicabs and similar commercial vehicles, will require the Certificates effective November 15. Purpose of the program is to conserve equipment for war purposes.

Local Farm Transportation Committees, composed of five members, are headed by county USDA war board chairmen. Other members include two farmers, one truck driver and one farm supply dealer.

Operators subject to the new registration order wil lnot be able to obtain gasoline, tires or parts without Certificates of War Necessity, Vance said in explaining the importance of filling out applications.

Application blanks for the Certificates of War Necessity are being mailed by the office of Defense Transportation direct to each truck and commercial vehicle owner, making it unnecessary to write in for the blanks. As the mailings are completed in each ODT district, full announcements will be given, after which anyone who failed to receive a blank will be advised now to obtain one.

Aviation Post At Celina Gets Commendation

An unusual record has come to Hugh B. Peterman, well-known Celina man, and other citizens of that Northwest Collin town from officials of the Eighth Corps Area of Dallas, says County Judge H. H. Neilson.

In this area of a large number of counties, only five aviation observation posts were given a perfect record and Mr. Peterman's post at Celina was one of the five, being the only one with a perfect record in Collin County. The perfect record comes from observation of unknown aircraft in the area and reporting it to the poper authorities.

Judge Neilson says there are eighteen observation posts in Collin County. Mr. Peterman and others associated with him appreciate the letter of commendation. Judge Neilson also says that many of the other observation posts are doing a splendid work, a part of this nation's war time program.

Carroll McFalls, Jr., Commissioned Second Lieutenant

Carroll McFalls, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll McFalls, Sr., of Seabrook, Texas, has been commissioned a Second Lieutenant of Infantry in the United States army following his graduation from the officer's training school at Fort Benning, Ga. Lieutenant McFalls has reported to his assigned base at Camp Pickett, Virginia. He was a graduate of the Waco High School and a member of Company D. 144th Infantry. Before reporting to his assigned base, Lieutenant McFalls spent a twelve day furlough in Dallas with his wife, Mrs. Anne Montgomery McFalls, where they were extensively entertained.

Mrs. McFalls is the former Anne Montgomery of McKinney and is a granddaugnter of Mrs. L. T. Gay of this city.

Mr. Addington called by and ordered the Weekly Democrat-Gazette sent to his daughter, Mrs. Frank Smith, 3930 Crest Haven, Dallas for which we thank him. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Texas Adington and was reared in this county.

RED CROSS RECREATION STAFF SERVES NEEDS OF U. S. TROOPS IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREAS

By George L. Moorad
(American Red Cross Correspondent, in Australia.)

A staff of American Red Cross recreation experts, designed to serve the needs of U. S. military personnel both in camp and in the principal leave areas, is now on duty with American expeditionary forces in the Southwest Pacific area.

Chief of the recreation staff is Grey M. Lusty, Salt Lake City, former faculty member at the University of Southern California and recreation supervisor for the Public Works Administration. Assisting Lusty as directors are Robert H. Brummett, Hillsboro., Ill.; Walter Howard, San Antonio, Tex., and Stanley Sommer, Washington, D. C. All are former college athletes and have had long experience in the field of public recreation.

Responsibilities of the American Red Cross, designated by the War Department as the sole non-military agency to serve with expeditionary forces during war, include the establishment of clubs with recreational facilities in the leave areas and in camps to assist the Army Special Service Division in any way requested. Thus, at the behest of the military, large clubs for enlisted men are in operation in Melbourne, Brisbane and Townsville, while smaller establishments, hotels and rest hotels have been set up at other points.

Aside from food, lodging and other conveniences ,the American Red Cross provide a varied program of entertainment and recreation. To each club is assigned an experienced program director whose job it is to provide a live schedule of sports and games and to arrange dances, concerts and other entertainment. At the Melbourne club, for instance, there are dances every evening except Sunday, when the soldiers themselves stage a radio program of music and interviews, which is broadcast courtesy of the Australian Broadcasting Commission. In addition, the club has arranged dancing classes, clay modeling, and handicraft work. Game facilities include table tennis, billards and volleyball.

In U. S. camps throughout the Southwest Pacific area the American Red Cross has been called upon to furnish vast quantities of recreation articles for able-bodied troops, as distinguished from comfort articles such as razor blades, cigarets, soap and similar items furnished to hospitalized men. These supplies of recreation equipment have ranged from playing cards, checkers and cribbage boards by the gross to portable phonographs, horseshoes, table tennis sets, mouth-organs, pocket knives, baseball equipment and mystery novels.

Recreation work in camps is divided into two phases—work among hospitalized men and the program for the able-bodied. In the first case, the American Red Cross provides at each general hospital a recreation specialist on the hospital staff. The able-bodied program in camps is carried on by an assistant field director for recreation under the instruction of the Red Cross field director and the Army's special service officer.

20,000 Texans Daily Apply For Drivers Licenses

In a last minute rush, 20,000 Texans a day are applying for drivers licenses, State Police Director Homer Garvrison said.

No old style licenses, the ones with two detachable segments, will be good after Nov. 1. The law provides that, unless the holders of these old linceses get their applications for renewal into the mail before midnight of Nov. 1, they will have to taken an examination.

So many people have waited until near the deadline to file their application that "we are just about snowed under," Drivers License Chief J. B. Draper said. While the Drivers License Division is able to issue 10,000 renewals a day, it may be three or four weeks before late applicants get back their licenses.

Paris Votes Against Legal Sale Of Beer

With thirty-six boxes reported out of fifty-four, Lamar County voters Saturday apparetly had defeated the legal sale of beer in Justice Precinct 1, which includes Paris.

The vote was 2,646 for prohibiing the sale of beer and 1,708 against prohibiting the sale, a margin of 938 votes for the dry voters, from the 4,354 votes counted. The expected total vote is 4,750.

Sale of beer in Paris will cease thirty days after the County Commissioners Court declares the result of the election. County Judge E. F. Harrell said Saturday night he expects the court to meet next Saturday to declare result of the voting.

Campaign For Enlistment 18, 19 Year Olds

An intensive campaign for the enlistment of 18 and 19-year-old volunteers for the Army Air Forces was announced at Perrin Field by First Lieutenant T. R. Hubbell, recruiting officer of Perrin Field.

"Eighteen and 19 year old men who enlist now may choose the branch of service in which they enlist," Lieutenant Hubbell said. "That means that a man qualified for work in the Air Forces can come in with assurance that he will serve in the branch that is most attractive to him."

The Perrin Field campaign was expected to arouse interest of hundreds of young men: for previously, except in specific cases such as Perrin Fitld's drive for mechanics, a man enlisting in the army took his chances of being assigned to any one of the various army branches, such as infantry, Air Forces, Armored Forces, or all the other branches.

Men who have delayed enlisting because they feared being placed in a service that was unattractive to them were urged by Lieutenant Hubbell to take advantage at once of the Perrin Field campaign. "Our authority to enlist men of 18 and 19 for duty with the Air Forces may be terminated at any time,' 'he said.

Eighteen and 19 year old men do not have to have releases from their draft boards before they enlist. A letter from their parents saying they have permission to enlist is all that is required before the man can be enlisted in the Army Air Forces at Perrin Field.

Men interested were urged by Lieutenant Hubbell to see him within a few days.

Alton Hooper, Route 2 McKinney, has been removed to his home from the McKinney City Hospital, where he submitted to an operation several days ago.

Agriculture's Wartime Needs

Plans for meeting agriculture's war-time needs in 1934 will be the theme of a nine-state farm conference opening at Lubbock Monday.

The three-day meeting is the annual fall conference of the Agricultural Adjustment Agency's Southern Region. It will be attended by approximately 100 state AAA farmer-committeemen and administrative officials from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklohoma, South Carolina, and Texas.

Principal speakers will include two high officials of the United States Department of Agriculture and a representative of the British government. They are Fred S. Wallace, national AAA chief; I. W. Duggan, director of the AAA's Southern Division; and Francis Flood, a representative of the British Suppll Council. All are from Washington.

Mr. Duggan's talk will open the conference Monday morning. He will discuss how farmers can make their maximum contribution to the war effort, and outline the part that the AAA plays in the over-all war program for agriculture.

Mr. Wallace will address the conference at the Tuesday morning session. He is expected to discuss the job ahead for farmers of 1943, in the face of such serious handicaps as shortages of labor, machinery, and fertilizer. He will also report on results of the 1942 Food for Freedom program, under which the Nation's six million farm families produced record-breaking crops.

Mr. Flood, who represents the British Supply Council, will speak on "Britain's War Effort." His tallk, slated for a Tuesday evening dinner session, will contain facts about the British War program of interest to Americans. Flood is a former associate editor of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman on leave for the duration of the war.

C. D. Walker, of Washington, assistant director of the AAA Southern Division, will preside over the sessions. B. F. Vance, of College Station, state AAA administrative officer, is host to the conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett McMenamy and children of San Diego, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Pennington of Oregon are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Pennington, Route 5 McKinney.

Mrs. John Welch renews the Weekly Democrat-Gazette for her daughter, Mrs. John Anderson, at Electra, Texas. Mrs. Welch sends the paper to her daughter as a birthday present, having been sending it to her for about twenty years. In this way Mrs. Anderson keeps posted on the news of McKinney, her girlhood home, throughout the year and thus enjoys a birthday present with the arrival of every paper. Mrs. Welch and family are long time friends and subscribers of our papers, the Daily Courier-Gazette and the Weekly Democrat-Gazette, which we appreciate very much.

Scrap Must Flow Faster Assert U. S. Officials

"If scrap metal doesn't flow to market at a faster clip, the Army and Navy of the United States may be forced to cut down on the thickness of armor plates protecting ships and tanks."

That sentence is not part of a propaganda broadcast by Goebbel's Lord Haw-Haw. The Axis didn't make that catastrophic prediction; it was made by Lieut. Gen. Grehon G. Somervell, chief of the services of supply of the United States Army.

It will take approximately forty-five million tons of scrap metal to meet maximum production requirements for 1942. That's twice as much scrap as this nation consumed in 1917 peak production year of World War 1. With the industry's sights beamed on a 90,000,000-ton production goal for the year, part of the tremendous job of supplying this scrap falls squarely on the shoulders of the American people.

Few Americans realize in peace time that our steel industry relied heavily on what we threw in the ashpit. Even today the significant role of scrap is hazy. Many think of steel made from "junk" as inferior and make-shift. Actually scrap combines with the raw material—pig iron—to make the highest pedigreed steel. In fact, gleaming stainless steel can be made from scrap mixed with nickel and chrome.

Every steel weapon in the arsenal of democracy consists of half scrap. Basically, the process of manufacture begins with the smelting of iron ore (about 50 per cent iron) in a blast furnace. The resulting pig iron is then charged with an equal amount of scrap in an open-hearth furnace for refinement into steel.

It is true that steel can be made out of pure pig iron alone—if we want weapons of an inferior quality manufactured at a slower pace and at a greater cost. Scrip is steel to begin with, and its use shortens the refining process. It is cheaper than pig iron, and by using it we conserve our stores of ore, coal, limestone, and other raw materials needed to produce pig iron. If no scrap were available this year, blast furnace capacity would have to be increased by one-half and mining and transportation facilities enlarged accordingly to make the additional replacement tonnage of pig iron. This would require an investment of over half a billion dollars, the carrying charges of which would increase the cost of steel several dollars a ton. Approximately 10,1 000,000 tons per year of pig iron capacity is now being created, but this will only partly take care of increased steel-making facilities.

America is in the midst of a scrap metal shortage. Normally the trend of steel mill operations can be pictured as a series of peaks and valleys. The valleys are low productive years when scrap dealers accumulate stockpile surpluses in their yards. Then along comes a peak year to drain off the excess supply. The year 1940 saw steel mills and foundries operating close to capacity. Since then, the pace has not let up long enough for the scrap piles to be replenished.

At the present time, there is not much more than two weeks' advance supply of scrap on hand to keep the steel mills on a full time war footing. We are running 5,000,000 tons short of capacity production—short of tanks, short of guns, short of munitions. Steel men insist that output will fall as much as ten per cent below capacity, unless we build huge stockpiles of scrap to tide us over the winter months. A production drop of as little as one per cent means the loss of steel equivalent to that in 140-ten-thousand-ton tankers.

There are 4,000,000 tons of the scrap lying idle and useless on the farms, and in the homes of America. As it is that scrap is of no use to anyone. It must be made to live and save lives, on the battlefields. To avoid a decline in steel production, America has a man-sized job to do before winter sets in. Winter weather necessarily makes scrap collection much more difficult. We have 100 open-hearth furnaces to feed at the rate of 100 tons of scrap per day. Given a quota of 50 pounds of scrap metal per family, it takes 2,000 families to keep one open-hearth furnace going for one day. To win this war, they must all be supplied with such a diet of scrap every day.

In the arsenal of Democracy, America's scrap and the steel it produces must fill a large part of the needs of the other United Nations, as wel las our own. Salvage must be translated into weapons for the four corners of the earth and it must sail the seven seas. What goes out, never comes back. Scrap must flow as steadily and interminably as "Old Man River."

Every pound of scrap steel and iron counts One large electric fan supplies the scrap needed for the steel in three 38 calibre revolvers. There is enough iron and steel scrap in two refrigerators to turn out the steel for two dozen guns.

In 1941 we used 27,000 tons of steel in the form of 600,000,000 coat hangers. This is equal to the entire weight of three heavy cruisers.

The iron and steel scrap needed to keep our steel production at capacity is hidden in the homes, farms, and industries of America. While there, it can neither help, nor be repaired, nor can it fight. Only when it is piled high in victory stockpiles in every community in the nation can it be converted into the manufacture of the planes, tanks, ships, and guns that will smash the axis armies on all the seas and continents of the world.

McKINNEY IS DEFEATED BY DENISON HIGH, 13-0; GAME IS PLAYED IN SEA OF MUD

Coach Henderson Malone's McKinney High Lions invaded Denison Friday night for a game with the Denison High Yellow-Jackets, the Denison team winning by a score of 13-to-0. The game was played in the mud. Up to the time of the game, each team had an undefeated record, Denison having won five games, but having been scored on, McKinney having won three games and played one scoreless tie without being scored on.

The Dallas News has this to say about the game:

"Denison's powerful Yellow-Jackets stayed on the undefeated, untied trail Friday night by turning back a previously undefeated McKinney eleven, 13-to-0.

"On a field ankle deep in mud, the Jackets outplayed the Lions, scoring twelve first downs to two for the visitors and amassing a total of 259 yards to two. George Woods, McKinney's ace back, was stopped.

"Denison broke the ice in the second quarter with a seventy-two-yard drive which culminated with Harold Rowland plunging over from the 1-yard stripe. Ed Hicks failed to convert.

"The Jackets clinched the victory in the fourth period when Ed Marshall skirted right end for a touchdown after a long drive which came at the close of the third period. Rowland plunged for the extra point."

Call The Railway Express If You Have Excess Tires

Call the Railway Express Agency in McKinney if you have excess tires to sell.

According to A. L. Giddens, Manager, of this city, they are already collecting tires to help create a national stockpile to keep America rolling.

All the owners of a tire or tires has to do is to call or write the Railway Express Agency office and a truck will be sent to pick up the tires, provided one lives in the city limits. If they live outside the city limits, they must bring the tires to the agency in this or other Collin County cities having a Railway Express Agency.

The owner will be given a receipt and he will receive a check in payment shortly after the tires have been inspected for determination of their value at one of the 160 warehouses established throughout the country as delivery points.

The owner has been advised to select his five best tires, if he has over that number, and sell the excess to the government before November 9, the gasoline rationing registration day. In applying for a ration card, the car owner must make affidavit he has only five tires and must list the tires by serial number.

When excess tires are turned in the Express Agency will give a receipt. The owner may donate his tire and will receive a card of thanks later. If he wishes to sell it, he will receive a check after the tire has been appraised and the ceiling price determined. Sellers have been advised to wait at least thirty days for the check before beginning to complain. The government wants not only good tires, but tires the owner thinks can't be repaired. If found not repairable, the tire will be paid for on a scrap price basis. If it is repaired the seller will receive the ceiling price, minus the cost of repairing.

Under OPA regulations, gasoline rations will be issued to private cars only after owners list all their tires by serial number and certify they have no more than five tires for each car. In the already rationed East, the certification will be required for continuous use of coupon books.

OPA said the maximum penalty for false certification was a fine of $10,000 and a 10-year prison term. Except in the East, registration for gasoline rations will begin in schoolhouses Nov. 9, with rationing going into effect Nov. 22.

The tires purchased by the government will be turned over to motorists "on the basis of need." Tires in good condition will be distributed to dealers as soon as possible. Tires damaged or worn smooth will be repaired and recapped before being resold.

The ultimate price to be paid by the consumer will not exceed the retail price ceilings. The cost of collecting and redistributing the tires will be borne by DSC.

Senator R. G. Parr Passes Away At Corpus Christi

Senator R. G. Parr, Duke of Duval, died at the age of 81, at his home in Corpus Christi Sunday. For twenty-two years he was State Senator from that section of Texas. He was known and loved by all because he was bright brainy and worked for his district. This editor and Senator Parr were personal friends but never voted alike politically on any program. We liked him because he was a square man and he had the brains and backbone to back it up. We regret his passing and sorrow and extend condolence to those upon whom bereavement has been placed.

Miss Ruth Davis called by our office and ordered the Daily Courier-Gazette sent to Mrs. S. L. Beer at Plano. We appreciate her subscription.

Former County Tax Assessor-Collector N. D. Ready is a patient in the McKinney City Hospital where he submitted to an operation Thursday. He is reported to be resting satisfactorily Friday.

Funeral Is Held At Mart, Texas, For Miss Brady

Largely attended funeral services for Miss Julia Markham Brady were held at Mart, Texas, Friday at 3 o'clock in the First Baptist Church there. The church was filled to capacity for the impressive service and the floral offerings were profuse. During the funeral hour the business houses of Mart were closed out of respect to the Brady family, former residents there where Mr. Brady was Vice President of the bank for many years.

Miss Brady, who was 20 years old, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brady, at 406 West Heard Street in this city Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock folowing an extended illness. She is survived by her parents, by a twin sister, Miss June Elizabeth Brady, of San Antonio; another sister, Mrs. Hans Mueller of Corpus Christi and a brother, Robert Lee Brady, who attends school in Denton. She was a member of the Baptist Church. The family moved to McKinney a year or two ago where Mr. Brady assumed the management of the Production Credit Association here.

The funeral cortege left McKinney Friday morning about 9 o'clock from the Crouch-Moore Funeral Home on South Tennessee Street, which funeral establishment was in charge of all the burial arrangements. Rev. Frank Cleavens of Waco conducted the service.

Funeral Services Held Friday For Mrs. Ed Beard

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Massie Funeral Home Chapel here for Mrs. Lillian Virginia Beard, 54, who died at her home, 909 South Tennessee Street Thursday at noon. Mrs. Beard was the wife of Ed Beard of this city. She had been in declining health for about five years and the past seven weeks her condition had grown gradually worse.

Mrs. Beard was born at Wylie, this county, February 7, 1888. May 30, 1909 she was married to Mr. Beard, who with two children survive: Leon Beard of the United States Army Signal Corps at Camp Crowder, Missouri, and Mrs. Lacy Howard of this city. Three sisters also survive: Mrs. John N. Deal, Route 2, McKinney; Mrs. Frank Forehand of Sherman and Mrs. Iza Duncan of McKinney.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. E. B. Jackson of Prosper; Rev. J. P. Hensley of Dallas and Rev. Robert H. Ridley, Pastor of the South Wilcox Methodist Church here after which burial was made in the Allen Cemetery in South Collin.

GARDEN CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. JOHNSON.

The M. C. Johnson home on Tucker Street was unusually attractive with many lovely fall blossoms arranged throughout for the Garden Club meeting held there Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Pauline Hughes was co-hostess for the enjoyable affair.

Mrs. Pat Murphy, President, called the meeting to order for a business session, during which time she welcomed the two new members, Mrs. W. B. Mitchell and Mrs. Marshall Padgitt. Plans for the yearbook were discussed and reports heard from the committees.

The program was given by Miss Hughes who gave an interesting discussion of "Early American Glass" and concluding the program Mrs. D. F. Houston presented a beautiful flower arrangement.

During the social hour tea and cookies were passed after which the club adjourned to meet again the second Tuesday afternoon in November.

Dee Angel and Jim Angel of Allen were in town on business Saturday.

R. E. Madding and wife who reside on Route 3, Quanah, were recent visitors to Collin County. They formerly lived near Anna and have a host of friends in that section of the county. Before returning home they called by our office and subscribed for the Weekly Democrat-Gazette for which we thank them.

N. Y. A. Is Doing Its Part For The National Defense

The National Youth Administration is doing its part for National Defense and the youth of McKinney and Collin County, having obtained positions of importance in the defense program for three employes of the NYA War Work Shop in this city, placing two boys, Zane Anderson, and Elton Edwards on Civil Service jobs as Mechanic-Learners in Radio to be stationed at Shreveport Louisiana, and Miss Geneva Crawford in the Lockheed Aircraft factory in Dallas, Texas.

The NYA Sheet Metal Shop in this city has placed several local youths in very good positions in Defense factories in this and other states in the U. S. Many girls from this city, now working at North American Aviation, completed the Sheet Metal Training in the shop here, and then were placed on jobs in N. A. A.

It is rumored that an airplane factory in the near vicinity of this area will employ about 1,000 girls and women in aircraft industry within a very short time, providing that they have had previous training in shop work; and any girl, between the ages of 17 and 24, married or single, may start training in the NYA Sheet Metal Shop in this city, placing themselves in positions to be transfered to some large defense plant in a period o ffrom four to six weeks.

Back To God And His Word

By J. L. Fummill.

Isaiah, 55:6-12. Seek ye Jehovah while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto Jehovah, and he will have mercy on him; and to our God and He will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith Jehovah. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts higher than your thoughts. For as the rain cometh down and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, and giveth seed to the sower and bread to the eater; so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.

This prophecy of God through Isaiah, was given about 712 B. C. Some 700 years prior to this, God had given the Law through Moses. (Some time called the law of Moses which is wrong for Moses never gave a law of any kind, but God gave the law to the Jews through Moses). God told them just so long as they obeyed his law He would fight their battles for them, but when they turned their backs on him, he would let the enemy overrun them, but if they would repent and return to him he would forgive them. After they entered the land of Cannan, God gave the judges to rule over them. Time past on and they clamored for a king. God gave them a king. Saul was the first one. It was not long before Saul turned his back on God and his word, did what he said the people wanted him to do, First Samuel, Chap. 15. Results, none of his posterity were ever permitted to succeed him as king.

David was the next king, ruled Israel for forty years, then his son, Solomon, took the throne, but he like men of today disobeyed God, in going off and worshipping idols. In his last writings, he said "Fear God and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man. For God will bring every work into judgment. Ecc. 12:13." After the death of Solomon the kingdom was divided, some following after one man and some after another. Therefore, their strength was gone.

Time rolled on and they got farther away from God. About this time Isaiah uttered the prophecy quoted in the beginning of this article. He said, "My word shall not return unto me void, but will accomplish that thing whereto I have sent it."

When one takes up the study of God's dealings with Jews, we can see just how true it was. In the 10th chapter of First Corinthians, Paul, writing to Christians, said, "These things were written for our admonition and learning."

God's word to people of this age will not return unto him void, but wil laccomplish that whereto he has sent it. In his word he has given the law of pardon, which seems foolish to some like it did to the worldly wise in Corinth, First Cor. 1:20. Turn read it.

The law of God through Jesus Christ will save if we obey it but will condemn if we disobey it. Jesus said, he that believes his word and obey shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be dammed. God said, to the Jews through Hosea, Chapter 4, Verse 6. My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge I will also respect you."

Let's take warning. Let's get back to God and His word.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd LaFollette and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. LaFollette, all of the Foncine community, were McKinney visitors Saturday.

DR. R. A. CLIFTON IS SPEAKER AT FRIDAY NOONDAY LUNCHEON OF THE McKINNEY ROTARY CLUB

Dr. R. A. Clifton, pastor of the First Baptist Church was guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon held Friday in the parlors of the First Methodist Church. The ladies of that church served the delectable noon-day repast.

Dr. Morris Minton, President, presided over the meeting and conducted the business for the day. Dr. Clifton brought an inspiring message tracing the races of mankind from their origin in Biblical days, and their migration to the present time. His talk was informative and highly enjoyed.

Other guests of the day included Mr. Agnew, an engineer for the new Government Hospital, guest of Rotarian Jack McCullough; Mr. Graves, also in the personnel of the new Hospital, guest of Rotarian Roy Roberts, and E. O. Snider, salesman for the Paris Wholesale Grocer Company, guest of Rotarian Loren King.

The program next week will be provided by Rotarians McCullough and Howard S. Ware.

Mrs. Dan Thomas Orders Daily For Husband

Mrs. Dan M. Thomas called by the office of the Daily Courier-Gazette and the Weekly Democrat-Gazette, sending the paper to her husband, First Sergeant Dan M. Thomas at Fort Benning, Ga. First Sergeant Thomas has served in the regular army for six years and has recently been transferred from Fort Sam Houston to Fort Benning, Ga., where he enters officers training school. He is in the infantry. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were married December 24, 1941 in McKinney. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Spearman and Mr. Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Thomas of McKinney. Mrs. Thomas, who was Miss Tressie Spearman, was correspondent from the Winningkoff community for these papers for a number of years. We thank her for the subscription and hope Sergeant Thomas enjoys the home town news.

"M" Association Postpones Annual Homecoming

On account of tire rationing and so many of the fellows being in service, the "M" Association has postponed Homecoming night for this year, and for the duration of the war. This homecoming of old "M" ex-lettermen has been looked forward to each year with much enthusiasm, by meeting old friends and new, but owing to conditions of our Nation, homecoming will have to wait for another year.

My hope and wish is that the war will soon be over and we can resume our activities once more. My thoughts go out to the boys in service and on defense jobs. May they do the job well and God grant they be returned to their homes and loved ones.

With the best of luck and success to the 1942 football team and coaches and sorry we can't be with you in a body as we have in the past but we're with you, win or lose.

"M" ASSOCIATION, Paul K. Wilson, President.

The evening classes are also held on Tuesday and Thursdays from 7:15 to 9:15 o'clock. At the class session Tuesday evening Benny Smykle of the County Health Unit, will be the speaker, bringing a talk on "Sanitation."

Corporal W. E. Bonham, Jr., In Massachusetts

W. E. Bonham, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bonham, Sr., of this city, is stationed at Camp Edwards, Massachusetts. He writes his parents that he is enjoying life in the army. He is in the Medical Detachment 142nd Infantry of the 36th Division. Mr. Bonham, who is a Corporal, had the pleasure of seeing one of the World Series games between New York and St. Louis, and says that he greatly enjoyed this treat. His friends will be glad to learn that he is getting along so well in the armed services of his country.

Thanks to Bert Noblitt of McDonald for Daily Courier-Gazette subscription.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lee Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Erickson of Rowlett were here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Smith inform us that their son, George Henry Smith, who has been working at the Corsicana Army Flying School since June 1 as a civilian Mechanic, inspector, Assistant Crew Chief and part time Instructor in air plane mechanics, has passed his CAM license test and has been promoted to Crew Chief and Instructor.

Lieutenant C. J. Tompkins, Jr., Is Killed In Crash

The death of Lieutenant Clarence J. Tompkins, Jr., in a bomber crash in Chicago Thursday, is regretted here since Lieutenant Tompkins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. (Budd) Tompkins, Sr., formerly lived at Princeton in East Collin. The family is well-known in this county. The youth's father was reared at Princeton and his Grandmother, Mrs. R. D. Tompkins, lives at Princeton. Lieutenant Tompkins lived at Waskom. He received his wings only last week at Foster Field, near Victoria, Texas.

Courier-Gazette One Of Papers Used At Bureau

One of the most unusual businesses in the world, Burrelle's Press Clipping Bureau of New York City, was started in 1888 at the time of the Great Blizzard in New York City. Clippings were marked on the U. S. S. Battleship Maine being blown up in Havana Harbor, the assasination of President McKinley, the first successful airplane flight by the Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk, and the San Francisco earthquake. When the Steamship Titantic was sunk in 1912, Burrelle's furnished the clippings. During World War No. 1, press clippings were marked on General Foch and General Pershing.

The Burrelle organization has grown until today it is the oldest and largest press clipping bureau in the world employing over one hundred people to read and clip every newspaper and magazine published in the U. S. and Canada and many foreign countries. Each reader scans from 50 to 150 different newspapers every day, or about four full length novels.

Of all the many thousands of newspapers and magazines read and clipped at Burrelle's, the readers enjoy the Daily Courier-Gazette because it contains so many interesting items and is so easy to read.

Mr. And Mrs. Gus Hudson Hosts At Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hudson, who reside at their home on West Leland Avenue, were happy to have all their children home with them Sunday, October 11. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oliver and little son, Jimmy Earl, of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Wilson of Lucas, Geneva, Geraldine, Betty and Gus Hudson, all at home. They all spent the day at the Lake and reported a good catch of fish during the day.

The Weekly Democrat-Gazette and the Daily Courier-Gazette office acknowledge a pleasant call from Frank Cotner of Copeville who renewed his Democrat-Gazette. We extend our appreciation.

Guynn L. Anderson, son of Mrs. J. B. Williams of McKinney, recently enlisted in the United States Navy and is stationed at Farragut, Idaho, having joined the Navy at Seattle, Washington. His many friends wish him success in his service in the Navy.

N. D. Ready, who submitted to a major operation in the McKinney City Hospital a day or two ago, was reported to be resting as well as could be expected Saturday. His children who are here this week-end at his bedside are Mrs. C. C. Calhoun of Shawnee, Kansas; Sergeant and Mrs. W. A. Hargett of Waco, Miss Naomi Ready of Quanah; Mr. and Mrs. B. Ready of Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lyall and son, Gene, of Dallas.

Private Charles Lem Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Smith, 800 Green Street, this city, has recently completed a special course of instruction at the Signal Corps' school at Camp Murphy, Fla., and is well-fitted for more important service in the American Army. Private Smith was selected for this specialized training on the basis of his aptitude as measured by a written examination.

Dad And Son Can Enlist At Perrin Field

Dad and son can enlist together to serve in Uncle Sam's Army Air Forces under recruiting drives now being carried on by Perrin Field.

In the field's campaign for enlistment of ground crew mechanics and radio technicians men up to 50 years old are eligible, while youths of 18 and 19 can now enlist as mechanics or for general service in the Air Forces under a new campaign for recruiting men of those ages.

First Lieutenant T. R. Hubbell, recruiting officer at Perrin, describing the Air Forces drive for 18 and 19-year-olds, said "the plan should interest young men and parents alike, for this is the first time the army has permitted men to enlist for the service of their choice. As mechanics, older men can choose ground crew work in the Air Forces; and 18 and 19-year-old men may make their choice now for the Air Forces and be assured that they will serve in that capacity."

Parent's consent is necessary for enlistment of 18 and 19-year-old men. This consent should be written in letter from and brought by the young man to Lieutenant Hubbell at Perrin Field. Eighteen and 19-year-olds do not have to have a release from their draft boards.

"Every man today is thinking of his opportunities for service, and all are seeking the service that appeals to them the most," Lieutenant Hubbell said. Now the army has seen fit to give men 18 and 19 years old a chance to take their own choice of service, for the army feels that men of that age are so adaptable that they can readily learn any duty in any branch of the service."

Lieutenant Hubbell urged 18 and 19-year-old men of this section to waste no time, however, in making application for enlistment, for he said the authority of Perrin Field to take such enlistments might be cancelled any time.

"We do not know how long we will be permitted to take such enlistments," he said. "But men who really want to get into the Air Forces should take advantage of this opportunity now and run no chances of being placed what they consider a less attractive service later on."

CARD OF THANKS

To the many friends and loved ones who were so kind and thoughtful of us during the recent illness and passing of our wife and mother we wish to express our sincere thanks and to wish for you and yours many of God's blessings.

ED BEARD, MR. AND MRS. LACY HOWARD AND MR. AND MRS. LEON BEARD.

Mrs. Lee Sanford of Route 1, Princeton, was in McKinney Tuesday and favored us with her subscription to "The Weekly Democrat-Gazette." We are pleased to have her as a new subscriber.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Shumate and pretty little baby daughter, Margie Ann, and Mrs. Shumate's Mother, Mrs. Stokes of Greenville, visited McKinney friends Sunday. The Shumate family moved to Greenville from McKinney a few years ago, since which time they have kept in touch with their many McKinney griends by occasional visits to this city.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

FOR DIRECT RELIEF from miseries of colds—coughing, phlegm, irritation, clogged upper air passages—rub throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub. Its poultice-and-vapor action brings relief without dosing.

ALSO, FOR HEAD COLD "sniffles", melt a spoonful of VapoRub in hot water. Then have the child breathe in the steaming vapors.

Flyers Of Many Nations Using AT-6 Plane

Flyers of twenty-three nationalities are now using North American Aviation's AT-6 series of combat trainers, whose world-wide service makes this the United Nations' "universal airplane," J. H. Kindelberger, President of the Company, said.

The low-wing, two-place monoplane which is standard equipment at all single-engined advanced training fields of the United States army and navy air services, is in flight daily from Canada's subarctic circle to the airdromes of Rhodesia and South America, and from the British Isles to Australia.

Mr. Kindelberger said the nationalities whose flyers are using the plane, either for training or for patrol and combat duty, include Americans, British, Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, Rhodesians (South Africans), Filipinos, Fighting French, Chinese, Dutch, Yuga-Slavs, Peruvians, Cubans, Mexicans, Chileans, Ecuadoreans, Brazilians, Argentinians, Columbians, Bolivians, Venezuelans, Uruguayans and Hondurans.

◆ ◆ ◆

Universal Plane.

"If all the 'alumni' of pilot training classes and patrol squadrons using North American's combat trainers could hold a convention, it would be the most powerful legion of the skies the world has ever seen," Mr. Kindelberger said. "There's no universal language, but among United Nations' airman, the AT-6 comes pretty close to being the universal airplane."

Thousands of the AT-6 combat trainer series and its predecessors, the BC-1, BT-7 and BT-14, are in service throughout the world. North American Aviation, Inc., began maufacturing the planes in its parent factory at Inglewood, Cal. In 1941, the complete responsibility for manufacturing the combat trainers was transferred to the company's new Texas plant.

From the Texas plant this year, the planes have been delivered to the United States army, navy and marine corps air services; to the British empire units; to Mexico, and to Brazil, Colombia, Peru, Chile, Ecuador, Venezuela and Uruguay. The planes are also now being manufactured, under licensing arrangements in Canada (Harvards), Brazil and Australia (Wirraways.)

◆ ◆ ◆

Student Pilots.

In addition to the United Nations which have the AT-6 type of combat trainers in service in their own air forces, a number of foreign "student pilots" from allied nations are flying AT-6's at advanced single-engine flying fields of the United States army air forces flying training command.

Among the nationalities which have received training in the ships in this country are Yugo-Slavs, Dutch (from the Netherlands East Indies,) Chinese, British, Argentinians, Filipinos, Cubans, Hondurans, plus all of the Latin American countries which have the plane in service in their own air forces.

Gas Company Gives Its Patrons Some Instructions

With many employes having gone to the armed forces and war industries, causing a depletion in trained personnel, customers who will need meter installations and other gas service facilities are requested to make such requests immediately. This statement came from Manager Hal Dyer of the Community Natural Gas Company, who said that service requests will be handled in the order received.

Mr. Dyer pointed out that need for tire conservation, the depletion of personnel, and other war-time responsibilities make it vital for customers to give their cooperation in all matters pertaining to service.

"Due to the loss of a large number of experienced men," he said, "the problem of meeting service demands on our organization by the seasonal fall rush is more serious than ever before in the history of our company. Many thousands of seasonal heating customers will request that their meters be turned on within a space of a few days. Other customers will call on our company to service and place in operation various kinds and types of heating equipment.

"The only way many of our customers can avoid delay in response to their requests for service, with the resultant inconvenience and possible actual discomfort, is to make these requests at an early date. This will offset the deluge of orders that accompanies cold weather. All requests for service must be executed in the order received, and those customers who delay making such requests will, of necessity, be required to wait until orders have been completed.

Bible Class Honors Memory J. Ed Gibson

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by The Men's Bible Class of the First Baptist Church of McKinney on Sunday, October 11, 1942. The Committee were directed to send copies of the resolutions to the family of our brother, the late J. Ed Gibson, and to the local press.

Brother J. Ed Gibson was a member of our Class for many years. He was faithful in attendance and in the performance of duty. He endeared himself to us by his genial and brotherly disposition and by his fine Christian character and faithful service. Therefore,

Be it resolved; That we express our sorow that death has removed him from among us and that we must, for a time, be deprived of his genial presence and fellowship.

Be it further resolved, That we express to his family and to his friends our sympathy in their bereavement and that we assure them that we snall pray to God, our common Father, that he will give them grace to comfort and sustain them until they shall join Brother Gibson in the joyous life where sorrows never come.

Drive For Old Keys Will Come To Close Friday

Jim Cantrell, Chairman of a Committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to collect old keys in McKinney, says that they hope to close the campaign Friday of this week. For that reason, they are urging the cooperation of all McKinney citizens in this drive and suggest that those who haven't turned in their old keps to do so this week, dropping them into the cans about the city for that purpose or turning them over to his committee.

Mr. Cantrell estimates that they have collected possibly 100 pounds of old keys, or about 3,000 to 4,000 different kinds of keys. They contain valuable metal that is needed by the government in its war program.

MILLER-PHILLIPS RITES PERFORMED OCT. 3.

Mrs. Hoyet Lee Miller was the former Miss Mouvelda Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Phillips of the Cottage Hill community, before her marriage to Mr. Miller Oct. 3.

The ceremony was read at the home of the officiating Baptist pastor, Rev. L. T. Grumbles. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Miller of the Scaggs community.

Bobby Max Arnwine, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Arnwine, Route 2, Anna, submitted to an operation in the McKinney City Hospital. He was getting along nicely Thursday morning.

Mrs. John R. Parr of Azusa, California, is here on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barry of Forest Grove and other relatives in Collin County. She will be remembered as Miss Mildred Barry. She likes California very much but also enjoys occasional visits back home.

Opportunity For Texans To Serve On Production Front

Texans who can not participate in the war on the fighting battlefronts will still have plenty of opportunity to serve on the production battlefront, officials of the North American Aviation, Inc., have said.

Thousands of additional Texas men and women will be required in the anticipated heavy employment program at North American's Texas plant, personnel Director Nate Molinarro said.

"We are confident that Texans will respond, as they have in the past," Mr. Molinarro said. "We expect to be able to meet all our personnel requirements from Texas and the adjoining states of the Southwest.

"North American has an order for manpower and womanpower, but we know Texas can fill it. In the months immediately ahead, we'll need more and more Texans to build airplanes to support the Texans who are writing such magnificent chapters of heroism on the fighting fronts."

Mr. Molinarro pointed out that North American had transferred only "a relative handful" of key personnel from its parent factory in California to form the nucleus for its Texas organization in 1940. Since that time, he added, more than 95 per cent of the men and women in the Texas factory have been Texans or residents of the adjoining Southwestern States. More than half of the factory's supervisory personnel today are Texans, a majority of whom had had no previous experience in the aircraft industry before coming to North American.

"Today," he pointed out, "the men transferred from the California plant are in the minority even in the key supervisory personnel of the factory."

Pre-employment training is highly desirable and necessary for applicants for the thousands of jobs to be filled in the big plane plant, Molinarro said. He pointed out that as the war effort is intensifying, it will be continually more important that new workers come into the plant with sufficient pre-employment training to enable them to adapt themselves quickly to the vital job of "getting 'em built to keep 'em flying."

North American Aviation does not endorse any aircraft training school, and does not guarantee employment to the graduates of any training course.

"National Defense Schools in Texas ,operated by various colleges and local school boards in cooperation with the State Department of vocational Education, are doing a fine job of training workers for war industries," Molinarro pointed out. "This training is free to the students. There are also a number of reputable private aircraft training schools in which the necessary pre-employment training can be obtained. Each gradlate of a training school, whether it be public or private, is subject to employment in our plant soleiy upon his indivirual ability and qualifications.

"North American Aviation requisitions all of its applicants through the United States Employment Service. Any person interested in making application for work in this factory should register at his nearest United States Employment Service Office, and should be guided by the advice of the Employment Service interviewer as to the type of pre-employment training for which he is best suited."

Will Reopen Merger Plan Of Schools

Reconsideration of the entire proposal of merging Austin College with Trinity University was voted Wednesday night by the Texas Synod of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., in annual meeting at the Broadway Presbyterian Church in Fort Worth. A committee is to be named for that purpose, but to report back to the synod, says Dr. R. L. Cowan, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church who attended with A. W. Moseley of this city.

The action came as a result of overtures by the West Texas and El Paso Presbyteries. These were referred to a committee on overtures. In that committee the vote was tied, four and four, and the chairman, the Rev. Samuel L. Jockel of Austin, broke the tie and favored reopening the matter. On the floor of the synod, the vote to accept the committee's report was 142 to 64.

Dr. E. M. Monroe of Houston, the newly-elected Moderator, will name the committee.

January 9 the synod committee on the merger reported six to two, with two members absent, that it was "the sense of the committee tht insurmountable obstacles made it impossible to effectuate a merger." Since that time Trinity university was moved from Waxahacnie to San Antonio for a merger with the old Westmoorland college, a Methodist institution, on the latter's campus.

PFC. Foster With Forces In England

Private First Class Louis Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie F. Foster of this city, has been in England with the United States Armed forces for the past five months. During that time he has sent messages to his parents on several occasions. Pfc. Foster is in the Medical Detachment of the army and likes it fine. He is well and in all of his messages he sends regards to all of his many friends in McKiney.

He was born and reared here, and graduated from the Boyd High School. Later he was engaged with his father in the trucking business for a year and a half before going to the service, having trained at several places in the nation before being transferred overseas. He is seeing many interesting things in England, and seems to be enjoying his experiences very much. We wish for this fine young soldier, as well as all the other boys in the armed forces of our allied countries, the best of luck.

Collin Girl Has Good Record At Denton School

Students at Texas State College for Women who have a "B" average in all their subjects are entitled to class exemption this semester. Only 190 of the 2000 students enrolled receive this privilege.

To be eligible, all students with an unusually high scholastic average are required to file application in the Registrar's office. If approved they are not subject to compulsory class attendance.

Miss Mary Alma Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walters, of Anna, has been approved for class exemption privileges, She is a Junior student majoring in Home Economics Education.

Cleve Copeland, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Copeland, Sr., of McKinney, has enlisted in the United States Marines in Dallas.

Mrs. E. J. Durham of Route 2, Blue Ridge, was a McKinney visitor Friday and ordered the Weekly Democrat-Gazette for the coming year. We appreciate her subscription.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)
